785,000 TO LEAVE CAMPS

All Will Be Released Next Month, Says March; Big Army to Stay in Europe

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—All the American forces abroad could be returned to this country and discharged within six months, General March, chief of staff of the army, told the Senate military affairs committee this afternoon.

The 785,000 men remaining in camps in this country will be discharged before the first of March, he added.

The United States now has 1,800,000 men abroad, March said. Whether the major portion of these will be returned during the next half year, he pointed out, depends upon the agreements reached by President Wilson with the allies on the policing of certain portions of Europe with allied forces.

Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the shipping board, is now negotiating for the use of German ships in transporting American troops to the United States, March said. It is expected that with the ships Hurley will secure the War Department will be able to return 500,000 troops a month, March explained. He indicated, however, that he firmly believed it would be necessary to retain a large American force abroad until the final peace treaty was signed.

Since the signing of the armistice, March said, 915,000 men in camps in this country have been demobilized.

TEAR AWAY CHIMNEY TO RECOVER $800 LOOT

Douglas Rogers, sixteen, of West Second street, South Boston, was in Roxbury Juvenile Court today on a charge of breaking and entering the home of Charles F. Bruce, No. 87 Mt. Vernon street, West Roxbury, on the night of June 9, 1918, at which time about $800 worth of jewelry and other valuables were missed. Special Officer Tilton picked up a clew that led to the boy's home. He questioned him and learned that the valuables had been thrown into the chimney necessitating the removal of many bricks before their recovery was possible. His case was continued until Saturday.

PRESIDENT BUSY ON LEAGUE

Wilson Considers French and British Plans; Impressed by Scenes of Devastation

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Jan. 27.—The supreme inter-allied war council, which is mapping out the general program for the peace conference, met again today at the Foreign Office.

At the same time representatives of upwards of a score of smaller powers met to select representatives on the League of Nations commission. Various conference committees appointed at Saturday's plenary session held their first meeting to begin working out details on various problems.

The President got down to action on the League of Nations plan today. He had before him the plans of General J. C. Smuts and Leon Bourgeois, the French expert. President Wilson hopes to incorporate some of the ideas these gleaned into a composite scheme which would be acceptable to the entire peace conference.

President Wilson spent an hour studying League of Nation details and then went to the Foreign Office to attend the supreme council session. In the meantime the smaller nations continue to press for fuller representation on some of the committees, but there were no indications that they would succeed at the present time.

Mr. Wilson was somewhat tired after his trip to the Rhenish area on Sunday. It consumed the entire day and the party did not get back to Paris until 10:30 at night.

"No one can put into words the impressions received from such scenes of desolation," said the President when asked for an expression today.

The trip was made in limousines from Paris to Rheims and through Belleau Wood to Chateau Thierry.

Has Your Dealer Reduced Food Prices? If Not, Why Not?

NEW ENGLAND HOUSEWIVES: Last week the wholesale price of butter declined 19 cents a pound. Eggs declined 15 cents a dozen wholesale. Pork loins went down 8 cents a pound. Veal and lamb sold for 4 cents a pound less. Did your grocer and your butcher reduce prices on these commodities in proportion to the reduction of the wholesale price? If he did not ask him today why he did not. Demand that you get the benefit of the reduced wholesale prices.

POSTAL MEN RAP ECONOMY OF BURLESON

Employes Say New Efficiency Order Has Caused Condition of Demoralization

General demoralization prevails at the Boston Postoffice as a result of the dissatisfaction with Postmaster-General Burleson's economy and efficiency policy.

This condition of widespread grumbling and discontent was brought to light today following the meeting of 1,500 postal clerks and carriers yesterday at the Boston City Club, where attacks on Postmaster-General Burleson were applauded to the echo by the great gathering.

Deliveries have been reduced, faithful employes have been transferred and demoted, clerks have been driven beyond their strength, mails have been allowed to accumulate hours before delivery, and general demoralization exists, according to employes of the central office.

CHARGE INHUMAN TREATMENT.

Charges of inhuman treatment of postal clerks by foremen who are pictured as profane task-masters were today forthcoming from aggrieved employes.

Fifteen downtown carriers, according to one prominent mail carrier, have been taken from the business district, and their work distributed among the remaining men.

Important deliveries have been reduced from seven to five a day, with the result that piles of undelivered mail remain unsorted on the carriers' desks when they are obliged by schedule to leave on their rounds of the business district.

FORCE IS REDUCED.

"The force of carriers is so reduced and their allotment of work so heavy that it is a physical impossi-

Suburban Food Shops Hold to War Prices

Retailers of food in some Boston suburbs know nothing about the drop of prices in butter, eggs, lard and other staples, judging by prices charged today.

The wholesale prices in these lines have tumbled and the down-town or city dealer knows it, as shown by a reduction in retail prices.

But the suburban markets, especially those out Commonwealth avenue way, in Allston, over toward Coolidge Corner and out into the Aberdeen section of Brighton, are failing to keep abreast of the downward march of these necessaries.

It is true that the suburban markets have delivery expenses, charge accounts to keep and some other expenses the city market escapes. Offsetting these, however, is the high rent paid by the down-town market man.

AGREE TO GIVE SERVICE MEN JOBS BACK

Boston and Massachusetts firms are holding open for their former employes the jobs they left to enter the service at the same wages or better. This, and the rolling up of 160,000 signatures to the petition for six months' pay for returned and returning men of the service, are the cheering messages which the Soldiers' Service Bureau has to offer to soldiers, sailors and marines.

The news that business firms are loyally keeping the places of their old employes ready for their coming in response to hundreds of queries sent out over New England by the Soldiers' Service Bureau. The replies

PETERS WANTS $10,000 TO AID FINDING JOBS

Asks That Sum From City to Be Used in Getting Work for Soldiers

Mayor Peters today sent to the City Council an order asking for $10,000 as a special appropriation to be used in finding employment for soldiers, sailors and marines discharged from the army and navy. The money will be expended under the direction of the Mayor's office, all bills passing through the city auditor's office. It is expected that no opposition will be made against the order.

The Mayor's message and order follow:

"That the work of obtaining employment of all kinds for the men who are being discharged from the service of the United States may be carried on effectively and efficiently, adequate funds must be provided, and it is for this purpose that I am addressing this message to the City Council.

"It was originally believed that when demobilization began the United States government would provide agencies and funds for finding employment for men leaving the service. This the government has not done. On the contrary, it has definitely indicated that the work of placing discharged men in positions is distinctly a local function, the cost of which must be borne by each locality.

ASKS FOR $10,000.

"The task of finding suitable employment for returned men is daily assuming greater proportions. There are no funds available, and if Boston is to do her share properly in this highly patriotic work ample funds must be provided at once. It is felt that the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) is needed immediately to guarantee the successful carrying out of the work of securing employment for discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, and this sum should be made available at once, to be expended under my direction for the purpose mentioned.

"The Governor of Massachusetts is introducing a bill into the Legislature providing for the appropriation by the State of like sum, which will undoubtedly be used to supplement in some degree the work now being prosecuted in Boston.

"In accordance with the foregoing statement of facts, I earnestly recommend the passage of the accompanying order."

PHYSICIAN UNABLE TO TESTIFY

War Dept. Denies Absence Leave to Doctor Who Heard Dying Statements of Woman

Saco, Me., Jan. 27.—County Attorney Franklin R. Chesley and those associated with him in the prosecution of Rev. Henry H. Hall, charged with the murder of his wife, Minnie O. Stevens Hall, at Wells Depot on June 11, were plainly disappointed today.

This situation resulted from the failure of the War Department to grant Captain Lawrence Willard, a Biddeford physician, leave of absence for the purpose of coming here to testify.

Dr. Willard rode in the ambulance with Mrs. Hall, from Wells Depot to the hospital here on the night she met with her injuries. He had been credited with having heard the dying woman make several statements. Among other things Dr. Willard is supposed to have heard her say, "Rest, Rest." The State contends that those words had to do with Mr. Hall and his friendship for Reat Green Gerow, the seventeen-year-old Wells Depot girl who has figured in the case.

Meanwhile the former pastor of the Wells Union Baptist Church is at the Saco Jail chafing for the start of his trial. His first request today for a shave that he might address Deputy Sheriff Muchmore, his guardian, put the request up to Jailer William Welch. The latter referred it to County Attorney Chesley.

ALLOWED TO SHAVE.

County Attorney Chesley finally announced his consent, but with the understanding that Judge Emery Emery, Hall's counsel, agreed to it. Judge Emery agreed and it was ordered that when the accused pastor shaved himself the deputy sheriff must be at his elbow all the while. This plan was carried out and following the shaving Hall ate a hearty breakfast.

Hall was today broken in spirit and despondent. On the eve of his ordeal he broke down and spent half the night weeping in his cell. Later he prayed, according to Deputy Sheriff Mutchmore, and sought diversion from his troubles by reading sea stories.

It is expected that the love affairs of the clergymen will make up an important chapter of the State's testimony. The two Gerow sisters, Grace and Reat Green (Katie), of Wells Depot, members of his congregation, have been most prominently men-

$200,000 ACTION BY FITZHUGH

Inside Story of Grand Trunk Invasion of New England to Be Told

The most sensational battle of railroad systems that New England ever knew found an echo today in the filing at Concord, N. H., of a $200,000 damage suit against the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont Railroad by Earl H. Fitzhugh of New London, vice-president and standard bearer of the Grand Trunk Railroad when it invaded Massachusetts in 1911 and 1912.

In his suit Mr. Fitzhugh charges that when the Grand Trunk entered into an agreement with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and its president, Charles S. Mellen, to abandon its expansion into New England it committed a breach of faith with the people of New England.

Mr. Fitzhugh alleges that because he told the truth about this agreement to the Grand Jury the defendants began a malicious campaign to ruin the plaintiff's career as a railroad executive and to discredit him as a man.

He avers that he was forced to resign as president of the Central Vermont road and as vice-president of the Grand Trunk and that two days later "the conspirators" announced to the public that Mr. Fitzhugh falsely represented the Grand Trunk in-

CAMBRIDGE MAN SHOT BY BROTHER-IN-LAW

Police, attracted by revolver shots to the Eddy shop of Aaron Fagnhain at 170 Huron avenue, Cambridge, today found the owner bleeding profusely from a bullet wound in the head, and attempting to dodge his brother-in-law, who was trying to get another shot at him. Fagnhain is in Cambridge Hospital, and the brother-in-law, Arthur Kalyan of Lowell, is locked up. Neither man gives a coherent story of the shooting.

EUROPE PUZZLED OVER PROBLEM OF WHAT CONSTITUTES A NATION

DESIRE TO UNITE MUST FORM ITS BASIS

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO

(The Famous Italian Historian and Philosopher). (Written Especially for Universal Service).

(Special Cable Dispatch).

(Copyright, 1919, by Universal Service).

Rome, Jan. 27.—In my previous articles I endeavored to show that one of the main obstacles in the way of peace is the question of nationality. Europe desires that the work of reconstruction be carried on in accordance with the principles of nationality, but is as yet unable to give a precise definition of what constitutes nationality, or to indicate the distinguishing marks by which it may be recognized.

There remains, then, but one trustworthy, straightforward way of discussing those peace problems which, as is the case with the special difficulties confronting Italy, are closely connected with the question of nationality. We must first find a precise, coherent and comprehensive definition of nationality, and then proceed to apply it with unswerving impartiality to each problem, no matter whether it favors or disfavors our own particular interests.

FORMULATED A THEORY.

What, then, is a nation? During the nineteenth century the question was discussed lengthily by Guiseppi Mazzini, the great Italian statesman and philosopher, in various of his works, and by Ernest Renan in a celebrated speech. The Italian scholar managed to disagree with Renan, and Renan, while, with slight modifications, appears to forsake the clear, precise definition which were used.

All these writers consider common language and culture necessary elements of nationality. Nobody would maintain, for instance, that there is such a thing as a Swiss nation. Language and culture alone, however, are insufficient. The United States and Canada, or Argentine and Spain, while possessing a common language and a common culture, do not constitute one and the same nation.

In addition to having a common language and culture, a nation must constitute a political entity or must desire to do so.

Poland, though non-existent on the political map, was a nation prior to the war, though only a potential nation, since its desire to form political unity had never died in the Polish people's breasts.

The Austrian-Germans and Austria, on the other hand, did not constitute a nation, but merely a race, since they did not desire union in a single state, though having a common language and culture.

Are we, then, to regard common tongue and culture, together with a desire for political union, as sufficient to constitute a nation? This is the most delicate and difficult point of the whole question, and we would, undoubtedly have an easy method of solving forcefully each question of nationality. We should merely have to find some simple method of putting the question to a vote in the disputed areas, thus allowing the people to decide for what state they wish to own allegiance.

We would, however, run the danger of turning the map of Europe into "a thing of shreds and patches."

In many parts such an arrangement would produce an inextricable confusion of states, especially in the frontier districts where the population usually is extremely mixed.

German colonies in Russia, or Italian colonies in North and South America, for instance, might demand a union with their respective mother countries. The Albanians in Italy might express a desire for a union with the future state of Albania, while the Slavs inhabiting the Udine district might likewise claim the right to become a part of Greater Serbia, which is, of course, absurd.

The difficulty is not a small one, and the only satisfactory solution is offered by Mazzini's theory, which coincides the principle that a nation must as far as possible endeavor to organize an entity both geographically and economically, with sharply defined and permanent frontiers.

Small foreign populations like those of the German colonies in Russia and the numerous European colonies in America, living in the midst of another nation, must form a part of the nation which affords them hospitality, and they have no right to attempt to separate themselves from it.

Briefly, the geographical unity and contiguity of each country must correspond, so far as possible, with the political and cultural unity, and when it is impossible to make frontiers in accordance with both these principles the governing factor should be that one of the two unities which secures to the peoples on either side the safest frontiers, the greatest injustice and violence, and a maximum of guarantees for universal peace.

If two races can act together for their own welfare by agreeing to sacrifice political and linguistic unity to geographical unity, there is every reason to allow and help them to live peaceably together. If two races, however, are unable to do so, war is almost inevitable, and force alone is the deciding factor. In such a case the decision by the principles of equity are ineffective.

Let us now see how far it is possible and right to apply this principle to the main difficulties to be considered in the Italian peace treaty. We shall begin by considering the questions of the Brenner and Trentino.

What, according to this doctrine, should be the frontier dividing the Italian and German peoples in the Austrian Alps which were previously Austrian property?

In Congress Today

Washington, Jan. 27.—President Wilson would be stripped of his power to turn back the railroads to their private owners whenever he so desires under a bill presented in the Senate today by Senator Cummins of Iowa. "The purpose of the bill," Senator Cummins said, "is to leave Congress free to exercise its own judgment as to when the roads should be turned back without being influenced by threats from the executive department."

Washington, Jan. 27.—Carrying total appropriations of $22,702,364, the Rivers and Harbors bill was favorably reported to the Senate by the commerce committee this afternoon. As passed by the House the appropriations totalled $25,939,244. The Connecticut River project, contended for by Senator Weeks and Representative Gillett, was not included in the bill.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Conference on the $100,000,000 famine fund bill reached a complete agreement today. Practically all Senate amendments were accepted. These provided, among other things, that the money should so far as practicable be expended on the purchase of American wheat and that no part of the appropriation should be expended on Germany, German-Austria, Turkey or Bulgaria.

REFUSE TO CUT FOOD PRICES IN SUBURBS

cents per dozen. But the suburban prices range anywhere from 74 cents up. At last accounts fresh eggs were running wild in the Aberdeen part of Brighton at 80 cents a dozen.

One of the excuses put forward by suburban retailers is this:

"We have to buy our stock ahead and, if we sell at reduced prices the goods we bought at the old wholesale rates, we will lose money."

In the first place, however, that does not explain why "fresh eggs" should not be of recent purchase.

In the next place, wholesalers maintain that the retailers were not stocked up extensively, as they saw the break in wholesale prices coming, and were running on slender stocks.

One of the suburban retailers, when asked to account for the high ranks of his prices, said:

"In some cases our prices are not higher than those of dealers in the same lines in the city. But, in the cases of those things which are high-priced, frequent deliveries, two and three and four a day; blame the necessary waste in trimming, in the case of meats; blame the heavy oiled paper in which many brands of pork and ham are wrapped, making an extra pound or two of paper to a box of pork and which we cannot eat or sell, but for which we have to pay the wholesalers."

THEN THERE'S TIME.

"It is quite important, too, to blame the necessary lapse of time that must come between a falling off in wholesale prices and a falling in retail. Suburban dealers buy their goods a day or two days ahead. Their retail prices they charge from day to day as the wholesale prices they paid some time ago."

26TH TO START HOME ABOUT MARCH 1

By HERT FORD.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army of Occupation in Germany, Jan. 27.—The American Twenty-sixth Division is expected to start for home about March 1.

Germans in Coblenz have begun to annoy the American women who are doing Red Cross and canteen work there. The American soldiers in the Coblenz district.

Miss Margaret Sheldon, a West Side slum worker in Chicago before the war, and Miss Bertha Love of Newark, N. Y., in charge of the Salvation Army canteen in Coblenz, were threatened by drunken Germans who tried to batter down the door of the apartment in which the women were billeted.

They reported their experience, but were told to change their billeting quarters owing to the scarcity of barracks there. Finally Miss Love got a new billet. Miss Sheldon was found with her sleeves rolled up and her arms reddened by contact with a hot stove over which she was cooking doughnuts and hot coffee for the doughboys.

HAVE REVOLVER NOW.

"Miss Lowe and myself have been billeted in a place that seemed especially," said Miss Sheldon. "One night we heard loud talk from men and women who were drinking. Finally two drunken Germans tried to force an entrance to our room, saying they wanted to 'get the American girls.' Miss Lowe, who understands and speaks German, told them to be careful.

"The incident was reported to the military police the next day. The same thing happened the next two nights in succession. Finally one of the officers gave me a 32-calibre revolver. We then moved into a nice place, but the local German that tries anything like that will feel the sting of lead."

ENTERTAIN BRITISH GENERAL.

General Sir Henry Horne, commander of the British first army, was the guest at dinner last night by General Dickman, commander of the American army of occupation. An American guard of honor was lined up in front of the Coblenzerhof when the British guests arrived on a huge stairway from Cologne. The boat carried many Tommies. The British soldiers swapped repartee with the Yanks, and some of them wanted to stay over and visit.

BOSTON MAN BUYS PIANOS.

Edward A. Filene of Worcester, Mass., overseas director of the Knights of Columbus, and William J. Mulligan, chairman of the war activities committee of the K. of C., visited Coblenz to study the needs of the doughboys. Director John J. Donovan of Boston purchased a number of pianos for chapels and recreation halls and started shipping truckloads of them forward weekly.

The motion picture, "Smiles," a Boston K. of C. product, is the No. 1 A. E. F. places of entertainment in Coblenz, is making a big hit.

LEAGUE NOT TO ABROGATE NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger. (Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Europe by London Daily Chronicle.)

Paris, Jan. 27.—I am enabled to affirm that the governments of Omsk, Ekaterinodar and Archangel will refrain out of deference towards the allied states from giving official expression to the feelings evoked by the plenipotentiaries' decision to hold a consultation with the Bolshevists. They will content themselves with abstaining from participation in the peace conference at Prince's Island, abandoning their hopes of assistance from the allies and readjusting their views and sentiments on the present situation and future policy of Russia to the new and disquieting conditions created by that decision.

DR. E. J. DILLON

Now that the die is cast there is nothing to be gained by dwelling on the disastrous consequences which the well-meant policy of the plenipotentiaries must necessarily produce. Events will bring them into sharp relief without wearisome delay. If anything could have added poignancy to the pain caused by the delegates' action it is the ingenious apology

SAILOR SWEPT OVERBOARD IN HURRICANE

Swept overboard in a 100-mile-an-hour hurricane, one man was killed and four others were badly injured on the steamship Trafford Hall, which docked here today from Calcutta. The steamer made the trip via the Suez Canal, the first passenger vessel to pass through the canal since the war started.

The dead man was Ung Moon. With four other Chinamen and a Lascar he was standing in the lee of a deck house when the ship was struck by a tropical hurricane. Moon and Ung Moon was washed into the sea when a section of the railing gave way. The others were saved by lodging against a winch. They were sent to the Marine Hospital in Chelsea today.

C. H. Rawlins, engineer officer, who also was on deck, has a sprained knee. There were four physicians on the ship, a doctor, a naval doctor, and two from missionary societies. According to officers, the thirty-nine passengers were badly frightened, especially the women and children, but behaved with much fortitude.

The passengers were mostly missionaries and families, from Calcutta, Bombay and Port Said. There were also nine naval officers from Gibraltar.

Among the passengers was the Rev. Benson Baker of New York, who returns from fourteen years' residence in India, with his wife and two children. He will remain in Boston for a time as the guest of President Lemuel H. Murlin of Boston University.

UNREST AMONG POSTOFFICE EMPLOYES

bility to complete the work assigned to the carriers within the alloted time," declared one veteran carrier. "The work-room is never cleaned, but remains coated with the grime and dust of many years—nothing to the unsanitary conditions at the central office which are responsible for so much sickness and lost time on the part of mail clerks," this same authority asserted.

Collections of mail in public and office buildings and from street boxes have been reduced one-fourth, and vast quantities of assorted mail arrive at terminals and sum up the service because the railway mail service is short-handed, it is declared.

Protests from business and theatrical interests in the vicinity of Tremont and Boylston streets at the inefficiency of the mail service have recently been made, it was brought to light today.

So great has the feeling against the poorness of the service become that petitions are being circulated in all of the cities asking that a better service be established and forwarded to Washington.

ASK BURLESON'S REMOVAL.

Charges of political manipulation of the carriers at the central office for their alleged support of Congressman Thomas H. Eliot in the recent contest in the Tenth District appear to be borne out by the feeling current in the post-office following yesterday's meeting at which Congressman Tague was applauded.

Democrat Peters, president of Postmaster-General Burleson, as advocated by President Edward J. Ryan of the Railway Mail Association today found practically unanimous support among the hundreds of postal employes throughout Greater Boston.

In response to questions postoffice employes replied that "Burleson must go" before there is any visible improvement in the present demoralized service.

HURLEY DENIES SHORT STAFF.

Acting Postmaster William E. Hurley denied most emphatically that the office was short-handed or that there was any unusual delay in the handling of the mails.

Postmaster Hurley refused to comment on Congressman Tague's arraignment of himself and the present Boston postoffice.

"Whatever may be my faults, I am not guilty of pernicious political activity," said Mr. Hurley. "Tague charges me with. All of my friends will testify that I am the farthest from being a politician of anything on the calendar," said Mr. Hurley.

Postmaster Hurley further emphasized that the reason for any grumbling on the part of postal employes was because the service could be, but insisted that they remain two hours overtime to sort and distribute accumulations of mail, due to a shortage of the public service.

He stated that they could do that much, in view of the $200 increase in salary they received last July, instituted by Mr. Hurley. Continuing, he said:

"Fifty of our 250 clerks and carriers who left for the war are now back on the job again and the public may look for a speedy improvement in the service. We shall be augmented by unassigned carriers on the pay-roll and no work for them to do at present.

"I am doing everything in my power to expedite the delivery of the mails and am co-operating with the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce. There has been a decrease in the number of deliveries since the revision of the train schedules following the declaration of peace. Deliveries were reduced from seven to five by the late Postmaster William F. Murray, and they have not been restored. There has been no change in the frequency of collections within two years to my personal knowledge.

GAS BILLS IN BOSTON JUMP 30 PER CENT.; CONSUMERS WONDER WHY

METERS PUT ON SPEED

Householders Suspect That Something Is Wrong and Voice Their Complaints

Boston gas consumers are wondering whether their respective meters are afflicted with galloping consumption or gastric fever.

Everybody who uses gas is agreed that something is the matter, at all events.

Consumers of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, formerly permitted the Boston Consolidated Gas Company to increase their gas rate to nineteen from 90 cents to 41 per thousand feet on and after November 21, 1918.

It will be recalled that the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners permitted the Boston Consolidated Gas Company to increase their gas rate to nineteen from 90 cents to 41 per thousand feet on and after November 21, 1918.

RAISED 11-1-9 PER CENT.

This order (Commissioner Solomon Lowenberg dissenting) raised the price of gas just 11 1-9 per cent. The majority of the members of the Gas and Electric Light Commission decided that, as a war measure, the Boston Consolidated Gas Company ought to be allowed to raise the price of its commodity for the duration of the war, or for a period not to exceed one year from October 31, 1918, — unless meantime lowered or raised upon petition as provided by law.

Added cost of coal, labor and handling was considered by the commission reasonable ground for making up the price. Little did most gas consumers sitting concur.

Accordingly, bills for gas consumed following November 21 should logically be expected to show an increase, we sort of 11 1-9 per cent over the same quantity consumed prior to that date.

This would be well and good—it was just that.

Most complaint is heard however, from gas consumers whose receipted statements disclose an increase of not 11 and 1-9 per cent, as might be expected, but far greater percentages. In one instance of a summer street resident, recent gas bills show an actual increase of 30 per cent over the same relative months of gas consumed prior to the taking effect of the higher price schedule.

HOUSEHOLDERS HARD HIT.

Householders, likewise, are at a loss to understand why their gas bills should show such a material increase since November 21.

There is a current suspicion that, somehow—either through the inferior quality of gas or the lack of certain ingredients—consumers are obliged to purchase more gas to the current product than was formerly the case.

The advice of Commissioner Lowenberg is:

"If your gas bills show more than 11 per cent increase, it is due to you in some definite amount of gas burned position to Newman 21, examining it, and if not, you ought to have your meter tested."

BOSTON SOLDIER TELLS OF GERMAN TREACHERY

A story of German treachery is told in a letter from Private Manuel Cunha of the 350th Infantry received by his mother, Mrs. Mary Cunha of 300 Chelsea street, East Boston. Private Cunha, who is now at a base hospital in France, recovering from wounds suffered on Sept. 29, writes that with a number of other Yankees, came upon a German machine gun nest. One fellow, calling "Kamerad" and throwing down their revolvers, the Germans turned the machine guns on the Americans and killed two, Cunha says.

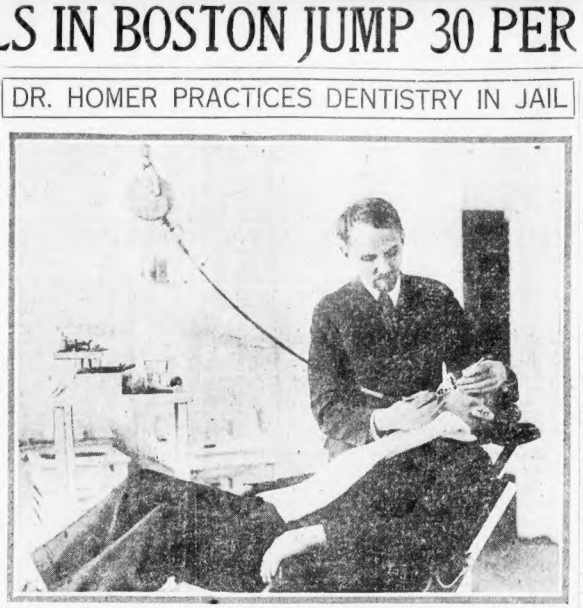
DR. HOMER PRACTICES DENTISTRY IN JAIL



Dr. Joseph Homer, who is awaiting the result of his appeal following conviction for the larceny of jewelry, is here shown in his "office" working on another inmate of the Charles Street Jail.

Charles Street Jail boasts of one of the most up-to-date dental establishments in the country, inside or outside of prison walls, also of one of the best dentists in the country in the person of Dr. Joseph Homer, the young California dentist convicted last Summer of the larceny of valuable jewels from Mrs. Isadore H. Willett. Dr. Homer has been in jail since midsummer awaiting the result of his appeal to the Supreme Court on exceptions to sentence.

With the aid and co-operation of Sheriff John A. Sullivan, through contributions from the inmates, Dr. Homer was enabled to completely furnish and equip his "office" with every contrivance and instrument in dental use and to perform the most delicate and difficult dental operations. Encouraged by Sheriff Keliher and practicing in a modest way, then enlarging his sphere of activities as more funds were accumulated, Dr. Homer has been able, since September, to treat as many patients and turn out as much work as the average civil dentist handles in an entire year.

Each inmate pays for his dental treatment as he is able, though none is charged more than the cost of material. Some, who are in funds, voluntarily pay much more than the retailed sum, which enables Dr. Homer to treat other inmates who have no funds free of charge.

Surplus receipts are put into new materials and equipment and Dr. Homer's ambition, after he has dental Council for the Classification of Dental Colleges and chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Dental Registry, has paid Dr. Homer the compliment of saying that his establishment is the most sanitary he has ever been in.

ROCKEFELLER 'ROBBED' BY WASHINGTON STATE

Washington, Jan. 27.—The people of the State of Washington, through their State oil inspector, are robbing the Standard Oil Company—or at least, John D. Rockefeller thinks. They have profiteered on Mr. Rockefeller to the extent of $255,572.93 from 1905 to 1916, and years are becoming more heartless. Mr. Rockefeller does not intend to put up with it any longer, so he has asked the United States Supreme Court to hold unconstitutional the Washington State law that created the State oil inspector.

President Johnson announced that the directors had raised $135,500, or 10 per cent, of the entire amount needed. The committee plans to raise the remainder before Saturday night.

LOW WAGES PAID TO WOMEN IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 27.—Surprisingly low wages for women are being paid in New York State. It is revealed in the report, published today, of the Industrial Commission. Sixty-eight per cent of the women factory employees were found to be earning less than $14 a week, and only eight per cent more than $20. In stores, fifty per cent earn less than $12 and eight per cent, $20 or more.

WOMAN'S CRIES FRIGHTEN BURGLAR

Mrs. Kelley of Malden Phones Police, Who Catch Alleged Old Offender

Brewer S. Sanborn, thirty-two, of Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Malden police court today before Judge Bruce charged with breaking and entering in the night time and attempted larceny.

Sanborn was arrested by two Malden police following a residence call early in the morning from Mrs. John J. Kelley, of No. 185 Highland avenue. Mrs. Kelley told the police that she was awakened by a noise in the room and discovered a burglar under her bed. She screamed and the intruder escaped through the window and was seen running down the street with another man.

A squad of policemen was rushed to the scene in an auto and Sanborn was seen running down a side street. Officers chased him and he was overpowered after a sharp struggle.

He pleaded not guilty to both charges and, unable to furnish $500 bail was remitted to jail by Judge Bruce for continued hearing on Thursday.

The police claim that Sanborn is the same man who entered the home of a person after serving part of a fine and one-half-year sentence for burglary. He also has a five-year term in the New Jersey State prison for the same offense, it is alleged.

HUNTERS FIND FROZEN BODY OF WOMAN

Mystery Surrounds Death of New Jersey Girl on Edge of Palisades

By International News Service.

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 27.—The gruesome discovery by two parties of hunters of the partly decomposed body of a woman, recently dressed and evidently a person of some culture and refinement, is today engaging the authorities of Bergen County.

The body was found on the edge of the Palisades, in the region known as Englewood Cliffs. The authorities believe the woman had been dead for a month. Except for the face of the corpse, the right of which evidently had been gnawed away by some rodent, was a hotbed which is believed to have contained chloroform, ether or some other deadly anaesthetic.

The empty bottle was secured to the nostrils by strips of linen cloth, while around the face, as though to make suffocation sure, was a mass of cotton wadding, held in place by a finely woven woolen underskirt.

No marks of identification could be found on the dead woman's person, her clothing, nor in the leather handbag which was found fifty feet away. In this bag was found a solid gold powder case, a gold fringe holder and a thin gold chain. $13.62 in money and the stub of a theater ticket for a performance on December 17.

The corpse, clad in an expensive fur coat, a blue serge dress of fine quality, embroidered crepe de chine shirtwaist, embroidered silk underwear and woolen stockings of the kind worn by persons who take long walks, lay on a ledge of rock about twenty feet below the top of the Palisades.

The dead woman was probably between twenty-one and twenty-three years of age, well nourished, carefully manicured, with a wealth of dark auburn hair.

Prosecutor Hurkin of Bergen County believes the woman committed suicide.

INFLUENZA FIGURES SHOWS SLIGHT DECLINE

Influenza figures for Boston today took a slight drop. A decrease was also shown in pneumonia cases and deaths. ARMOUR ADMITS 'PRICE-FIXING' BY BUYERS

Testifies That Deal Has an "Influence" on the Nation's Market

By HUGH McLELLAN,
Staff Correspondent International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—A great army of buyers located in stockyards all over the country and in constant touch with each other and with their home offices commence their operations every day in maintaining prices and steadying the market, Francis J. Heney, Federal Trade Commission counsel, brought out in the cross-examination of J. Ogden Armour before the Senate Agricultural Committee today.

Those buyers, Armour admitted, kept in touch with each other and with their home offices every hour when the necessary arose, and although they were not told to "bid high or bid low," a representative of their bids was more than likely to be the bids as the Chicago market quoted.

When those buyers received a shipment of cattle because the price was too high for the animals were shipped to another city, the buyer in the first city notified the buyer in the second city and left it optional with him to pay the price asked in the slightness of cattle on the way.

The packer admitted, did not control the market, but "had an influence." The buyers did not act in unison, Armour said.

The Kenyon-Kenrick bill providing for regulatory and control measures of the packing industry, "is free in many respects from objectionable provisions," Levy Mayer, J. Ogden Armour's counsel, told the committee. The Kendrick bill is before this committee. Mayer stated that he would speak at greater length on the bill some time this afternoon.

McADOO WARNS OF NEW "CUT-THROAT" RIVALRY

Delmar, O., Jan. 27.—A return of "cut-throat" competition of railroads under private ownership would destroy water transportation," W. G. McAdoo, former director general of railroads, declared today in a telegram from Santa Barbara, Cal., to the Miami and Lake Improvement Association of the National Chamber of Commerce, meeting here to urge construction of a canal from Toledo to Cincinnati. McAdoo again urged his plan for a five-year extension of government control.

IRISH FACTIONS MAY UNITE FOR HOME RULE

London, Jan. 27.—A coalition of Irish factions under the banner of home rule, with maintenance of certain connections with Great Britain, was predicted today by the Dublin correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs. SHOE WORKERS BACK AT WORK IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, Jan. 27.—Likelihood of a strike of shoeworkers here, which has been threatening for the past two weeks, was believed today to have been averted when the Austin H. Perry Company opened its doors after being closed for several days. About eighty employes returned to work, of the 400 or 500 usually employed there.

Sidis, Harvard Prodigy, Teaches "Infants" in Bolshevik School

Bolshevism and Socialism are being taught to "infant students" in three schools of a new Boston institution.

The youngsters, ranging from four years up to fourteen, learn to sing the "Red Flag" and the "International." It is even said they know these revolutionary airs better than they do "The Star Spangled Banner."

They have lessons, too, in sexology.

William James Sidis, the "infant prodigy" of Harvard University, who received his degree at sixteen, is one of the chief lecturers to the "infant Bolsheviki." He is now delivering a series of talks on a Utopia of his own creation to these pupils.

HE IS ACTIVELY C. P.

To these children, William James Sidis of "Fourth Dimension" fame, and owner of such words as "Effectonoscanadrasaon" is unknown. Instead, he is introduced to them as "Citizen H. H. of Moscow," a typical creation of his own "Utopia," explained on numerous sheets of paper which he carries about in a black portfolio.

"Do you really teach Bolshevism to those young pupils in connection with your courses in social economics?" Mr. Sidis was asked by the American reporter.

"Yes, we do," replied Mr. Sidis.

This institution, with which he is affiliated, was founded in Boston by Miss Dudley Standish, of No. 8 Otis street, on November 4, 1918, starting with a mere handful of pupils. Now its enrollment has grown to 300, and is housed in three schools, known as the Roxbury Branch, at Oakland Hall, Chestnut Hill; the Central Branch, at No. 885 Washington street, and the West End Branch, at No. 5 Allen street. Seven teachers are on the educational staff at present, over which Miss Standish is superintendent. Three teach at Roxbury, two at the Central, and two at the West End Branch.

The pupils are divided into three divisions according to age. In the first division are children up to nine years; children between nine and ten years of age are in the second, and between ten and fourteen in the third. The youngest are taught the revolutionary airs through agreeable rhymes, fitted with words that will convey the necessary idea. This is a sample of the lesson given by a six-year-old pupil at the Roxbury school at the Sunday morning session:

Big-ley, big-ley de,
Boss of the world is free
To rob us of our labors
Jack and Jill and me.

Big-ley, big-ley de,
The boss he'll no longer be,
For we will take all that we make,
Jack and Jill and me.

This gathering of "infant Bolsheviki" is international. All that is lacking to make it complete is one little negro pupil.

CLASSES IN SEXOLOGY.

The older classes are taught economics, from Socialistic standpoint. As Miss Starobin says, "the lectures on biology and sex hygiene are administered in baby form by Miss Hazel Andrews, a medical student from Colorado, and the flowers and birds reproduce themselves artistically and joyously during her recital."

The interview drifted to the struggle in Russia. When asked if her school was teaching such principles she hastened to say:

"It isn't a question whether or not we teach Proletarian Junior that there is such a thing as a class struggle! The workers are downtrodden, that poverty is an evil. Proletarian Junior is made painfully aware of these realities every day in his life.

"But Junior is inquisitive. He wants to know why Johnny Jones has new rags when his father works all day making clothes. He learns something of the law of supply and demand at some rally, and he often is prompted to fight an older man with his young friends in the streets, and they decide by forcible diplomacy who walks, lay on a ledge of rock about twenty feet below the top of the Palisades.

The dead woman was probably between twenty-one and twenty-three years of age, well nourished, carefully manicured, with a wealth of dark auburn hair.

Prosecutor Hurkin of Bergen County believes the woman committed suicide.

THRONGS GREET EDWARDS IN WORCESTER

On His Way There People of Northboro Hold Him Up and Demand War Speech

Worcester, Jan. 27. — Worcester opned her arms today to Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the Northeastern Department, and in command of the 26th New England Division during its conquest in France.

Only on one other occasion in the last four years was there such a celebration in Worcester. That was on the day following the signing of the armistice.

Accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Simmons, widow of his former aide, and his staff, General Edwards, arrived at Quinsigamond Bridge, the entrance to the city by auto, a quarter before noon. He would have arrived sooner had not the entire population of Northboro turned out and blocked the highway. Police, main artery between Boston and Worcester. When the chauffeur found it impossible to proceed Major-General Edwards stepped from his car.

"Tell me where the Northboro boys did," some one shouted. Then for ten minutes General Edwards told them, as nearly as he could tell all but he told enough to satisfy every man, woman and child that their men folks in France were just the heroes they knew they were.

The major-general was met at the outskirts of Worcester by Mayor Peter G. Holmes and a reception committee. He was escorted immediately to the City Hall. All along the route he was given a great ovation.

At City Hall one of the first persons to greet the fighter was Mrs. Sarah H. Havilland, the mother of her son, Dr. Walter Havilland. Several thousand persons passed through the Mayor's reception room to shake hands with the general.

Following the reception the distinguished visitor was taken on a motor trip about the city and then luncheon was served at the Worcester Club.

To-night Major-General Edwards will be the guest of honor at a banquet in the Bancroft.

ADMIRAL CHADWICK OF SPANISH WAR FAME DEAD

New York, Jan. 27.—Rear Admiral French Ensor Chadwick, U. S. N., retired, is dead at Newport, R. I., according to advices received here today. Admiral Chadwick served throughout the Spanish-American War as chief-of-staff to Admiral Sampson and participated in all the important engagements with the North Atlantic squadron in 1898. Admiral Chadwick was born in Morgantown, W. Va., on February 29, 1844, and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1866. Later he commanded numerous warships and detailed to conduct many important investigations for the navy. He was retired at his own request on February 28, 1906, after a sea service of fifteen years and with duty of more than twenty-five years.

SUFFRAGE 'PRISON SPECIAL' IS TO VISIT BOSTON

Washington, Jan. 27.—The itinerary for National Woman's Party "prison special" coast-to-coast tour is announced. The special train will leave Washington, February 9, and the following stops, in the order given: Charleston, S. C., Jacksonville, Fla.; Knoxville, New Orleans, San Antonio, Tex.; Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Syracuse, Boston, Hartford. The trip will close with a big mass meeting at New York, March 4.

Twenty-six women who have served prison terms for suffrage demonstrations at the White House have been designated to make the trip.

POLICE MATRONS FOR DANCE HALLS URGED

Under Expert Supervision Evils Would Cease, Says Marion Nichols

"I do not believe that the public thought needs to be aroused about things when they are properly up to the minute," said Miss Marion Nichols of the Massachusetts Civic League, discussing the Boston American's crusade to rid the city of low-grade public dance halls.

"I have read the American's editorial and articles with much interest and I believe in their aims. But to my mind the solution of the problem is to carry out the recommendations of the White Slave Commission and enact the bill unsuccessfully presented to the Legislature, to have municipal matrons stationed in every such hall. I believe that under expert supervision the practices complained of would cease to exist."

CALLS FOR MATRONS.

The bill referred to by Miss Nichols contains the following provisions:

A matron appointed by or approved by the licensing authority shall be required to be present throughout every such public dance, and shall be admitted without payment of admission fee. The duties of the matron shall be to require that the dance be conducted and that all persons present at or about the dance conduct themselves in an orderly, proper and decorous manner, and to afford protection and assistance to persons in need thereof. In the performance of her duty she may call upon the police and upon the persons in charge of the dance for such assistance as may be necessary, and may revoke the license for the dance for broken conditions.

That no matron shall be permitted and required to occupy such position or positions as shall enable her, clearly to see all parts of the premises where the dance is conducted, and shall not be permitted to have free access to all parts of the premises used in connection therewith, and shall be available to or used by those present, and that she may leave the presence of the dance. That the persons to whom the license is issued will cooperate and assist the matron in enforcing compliance with the conditions of the license.

"Such a measure to my mind will have more effect than any mere regulations could have," continued Miss Nichols.

IN GIRL PROBLEM.

"After all this dance hall problem simmers down to a girl problem. Put in supervision of dances a woman of character and experience, a woman who understands girls, and she can win their confidence, and you will have solved the problem.

"It is unreasonable to expect any private agencies to do this. For one thing, they are not powerful enough, the authority of a city official, and again there are no private agencies or workers enough to meet the situation.

"The problem is one for the city, and the matrons should be city officers. They will be vested with the authority which police officers stationed in dance halls at present lack. The officers are there to stop actual infractions of the law as it affects the premises. But necessarily police officers are not trained particularly for the sort of service most needed in the dance hall, which is the protection of the young girl.

"Women are peculiarly well fitted for this than men. A trained woman could easily size up a girl's age, and could be quick to recognize undesirable characters from the girls bound to be there.

SHOULD HAVE AUTHORITY.

"She would have authority to order objectionable characters from the hall, and the police would be there to enforce her orders. Furthermore, she would be there to sympathize with and give advice to girls in need of it.

"The objectionable characters who serve as procurers for the more prominent gaming there, the women with police records, and so on, could be picked out by the matron at the door once and ordered away from the halls for good.

"I do not believe it is possible to have formal introductions take place at a dance, as some do. That would require not one but many matrons in each hall.

"Nothing to me really the most simple solution of the problem, and one far more effective than the mere enactment of regulations which it is hardly possible to enforce."

SOLDIERS' SERVICE BUREAU GIVES AID TO ALL

This department of the Boston American is dedicated to the purpose of doing things for the soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam, it is for officers and men alike. Answers to questions will be published in the American daily, and many personal services will be done for the soldiers and sailors as stated below.

The department is not merely operated as a question and answer column. It is co-operating with similar departments in Hearst's New York American, Chicago Examiner, Atlanta Georgian, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Attorneys will answer questions of a legal nature and undertake many kinds of legal work in the courts for officers and enlisted men in behalf of the Boston American and its associated Hearst newspapers.

Please write any suggestion you have for widening the activities of this department.

Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. Letters marked "confidential" will be so treated. Men of the army and navy, let us help you.

As to procedure, the purposes will be:

1—To conduct, in behalf of the officers and men of the army and navy, a legal bureau, with headquarters in Washington and with branches in each city where a Hearst paper is published.

2—To have the severe sentences of courts-martial examined into to see if any injustice has been done and to fight for righting of all wrongs that may have been done by courts-martial.

3—To aid discharged soldiers, sailors and marines in procuring positions.

4—To get employers ready to hire discharged soldiers, sailors and marines.

5—To gain special medical attention for recently discharged men.

6—To work for the rapid discharge of soldiers with six months' pay in advance.

7—To help relatives find men in the service.

8—To hurry the settlement of allotments and the pay of officers and men of the army and navy where delays have occurred.

9—To provide information consistent with the nature of the bureau.

10—To aid in the formation of associations of veterans of the war; to list those formed and to assist them in working out their plans.

11—To arrange lodging for visiting service men.

12—To give legal and seek personal aid where families of soldiers, sailors and marines are threatened with, or involved in dispossess proceedings in any way due to the absence from home of the members in the fighting forces of the United States. Soldiers and sailors should write at once if they are in any kind of trouble.

W. M. B. BROCKTON—The 29th Division was at Robert-Espagne when the armistice was signed. It is now located at Bourbonne-les-Bains, and is part of the 1st Army. The only one of its units that far ordered home is the 104th Trench Mortar Battery.

APPLETON STREET MOTHER—The 54 Company, 4th Air Service Mechanics Regiment, has been ordered home. It is due for early convoy now.

ROXBURY MOTHER—Part of the 329th Field Artillery will arrive in New York this week. It is on the steamship Lorraine.

SISTER—The 2d Air Service Mechanics are ordered home via Brest. The 4th is awaiting a ship at the U. S. S. Connecticut, which is due in New York on February 2.

BROTHER BRIGHTON—Yes. The 487th Aero Squadron has been placed on the priority list for convoy home.

WORCESTER, L. C. T.—Yes. The 58th Regiment, C. A. C., is due in Philadelphia January 30.

L. N. P. NEWTON—Base Hospital No. 15 of the advance section, G. H. Q., has been placed on the priority list for convoy home.

R. D. WORCESTER—The 75th Regiment, C. A. C., was brought home on the last voyage of the transport Mongolia, and demobilized some weeks ago at Camp Devens.

R. W. C. SOMERVILLE—The 6th Regiment of Marines, which was in the famous brigade of Marines of the 2d Division, was withdrawn from Coblenz to Brest, I understand. Most of its veterans have been sent home in casual companies and are now at Quantico, Va.

DORCHESTER WIFE—The 2d Company, and the whole 1st Battalion of the 29th Engineers, have been taken off the priority list. No explanation has been given with this announcement. The rest of the regiment remains on priority schedule, and the 1st Battalion may be restored to the list soon.

A SAILOR'S WIFE—The peacetime regulations permitting an enlisted man to purchase his discharge are not in vogue in wartime, and you must remember that a state of war still exists between the United States and Germany, although an armistice has caused a cessation of hostilities.

D. H. T., Cambridge—The 146th Field Artillery has not been designated to return, and is not in the Army of Occupation. It belongs to the 41st Division, which was last located at St. Aignan.

ANXIOUS WIFE, Providence—The 2d Air Service Mechanic Regiment is not yet assigned for early convoy home. It may be designated in the near future, however, as the 2d Regiment has been. It is not attached to a division.

A WIDOW MOTHER — Co. H, 315th Infantry, is in the 79th Division, attached to the Army of Occupation. It will probably not return for some time yet. The 315th Infantry, 79th Division, has not been ordered home. But there are indications that it may be assigned for convoy in a few weeks.

RAYNHAM MOTHER — The 104th Ammunition Train, which is attached to the 29th Division, last reported at Bourbonne-les-Bains, has not been designated to return home yet.

A. M.—The 15th Field Artillery is in the 27th Division, last reported in Montfort. It has not been assigned for early convoy.

"BABE"—The mail service between the American Expeditionary Forces and home is notoriously bad now. It seems to have grown worse weekly since the signing of the armistice. The 3d Pioneers have not yet been assigned for convoy.

ANXIOUS SISTER, Waltham—The 307th Supply Train is in the 32nd Division and has not been designated to come home.

ANXIOUS—Battery D, 45th Artillery, C. A. C. are at Brest awaiting convoy home.

MADAME X—So far as is known here, the officers' training schools at Langres are being continued.

PLAPAO

PLAPAO FORCED THROUGH THIS OPENING

The Plapao Pads are awarded Gold Medals and Grand Prix

Abolish the Truss

Do Away With Steel and Rubber Bands

THAT CHAFE AND PINCH

You know by your own experience the truss is a mere makeshift—a false support—and a confessed Wall—and that it is undermining your health. Why then continue to wear it? The binding and pressure prevent proper blood circulation, thus robbing the tissues of that nourishment which they must have if you expect them to regain their normal strength and elasticity.

The Plapao Pads Are Different

STUART'S PLAPAO-PADS are entirely different from the device known as the truss in the following respects:

First—The primary and most important object of the PLAPAO-PADS is to keep constantly applied to the relaxed muscles the medication called Plapao, which is contractive in nature, and taken together with the ingredients in the medicated pads is intended to increase the circulation of the blood, thus revivifying the muscles and restoring them to their normal strength and elasticity. Then, and not until then, can you expect the rupture to disappear.

Second—Being made self-adhesive, purposely to prevent the pad from shifting, they have therefore proven to be an important adjunct in retaining rupture that cannot be retained by any truss ever made, as the metal pads in PLAPAO-PADS do not require the springs attached. No "digging in" or gouging process. They are soft as velvet—Flexible—Easy to apply—Inexpensive. Call and get one and begin treatment at home. No delay from work.

Bring About These Benefits

Upon the normal exercise of nature intended, so the rupture can't come down, and when the PLAPAO-PADS successfully applied these wonderful benefits quickly follow:

—The ruptured parts are sustained and held together.

—The weak muscles recover their elasticity and strength.

—The unsightly, painful and dangerous protrusions disappear.

—That horrible "dragging down" sensation is banished, never to return.

—You recover the vigor, vitality, energy and elasticity you have lost.

—You look better, you feel better, and you are better in every way. Beyond question upon your improved appearance. And believe from the birth of a new hope, a new manhood, and a dread of its consequences, your spirits rise, your health improves, you soon lose fear of trouble, other life adding fear of trouble. Hundreds of unsolicited and grateful testimonials, many of them unsolicited, to acknowledge, unhesitatingly and unreservedly, the relief they have received from the use of PLAPAO-PADS. Being aggravated cases and of long standing. If you are ruptured you should do the same for you if you will but give them a chance.

CONVINCING PROOF!

The Fighting Spirit of Smith D. Shannon, Veteran of the Civil War, Not "Shannon of the Sixth"

EVER so often a man gets so enthusiastic about the success of Stuart's Adhesive Plapao-Pads that he bursts forth with unstinted praise. Of course we join with him in his appreciation of returned health and strength. And we want you to join with us in this great enthusiasm — but here is the rub of the matter, your enthusiasm won't help you. Think of it—SMITH D. SHANNON, 75 years old, a veteran of the war 61-65, has so to speak availed himself of the 45 centimeter treatment.

He has fought for his health as valiantly as for his country. He has used up-to-the-minute methods and they have restored to him vitality and health.

SMITH D. SHANNON

Completely relieved—that's what he says under oath. What he has done for himself, through successful appliance of Stuart's Adhesive Plapao-Pads, is what you must do if you wish to gain liberty from the burdensome truss. This is only one of the hundreds of enthusiastic letters we have received from the relieved. It is reasonable that the PLAPAO-PADS should do the same for you, if you will but give them a chance. But if you like, we shall send you copies of several testimonial letters from people, old and young, who stated that the PLAPAO-PADS relieved their ruptures and restored them most agreeably and economical of long standing.

SOLDIERS JOIN IN DRIVE FOR WAR BONUS

have only begun to come in, but they are very much alike and all have the same patriotic ring.

"We are glad to say that the positions of former employes who have been in the service are open to them at the same or higher wages," is a statement contained in the letter of the Parkhill Manufacturing Company of Fitchburg which is typical of many received.

And also: "If vacancies occur, preference will be given, other things being equal, to men who have been in the service."

Heads of the various employment agencies agree that the problem of unemployment among soldiers, sailors and marines will be simplified if each employer will agree to take back his former employes as fast as they are discharged from the service at the same, or better, wages. In most cases it is better wages, because the men are becoming heir to the improved hours, wages and working conditions which labor has won during their absence.

[illegible] McDonald of Haverhill, a member of the insurance firm of Flynn & McDonald of that city, in sending in the signatures of twenty-five of his friends to the Soldiers' Service Bureau petition for a six months' war bonus for service men, writes that he intends to vigorously urge action by the World War Veteran Association of that city. This organization is composed of veterans of the great war.

"I had these names attached to your petition in less than half an hour," he writes to the American, "and if you would personally ask each man who has been discharged to cooperate with you in this campaign your office would be deluged with signatures.

"Everyone was delighted to sign the petition and expressed the opinion that Washington would go through with it."

In Lewiston, Me., P. F. Tremblay, a lawyer of that city, secured fifty names with ease to one of the petitions and declares that he intends to get many more.

Reports from all over the New England States are identical. No one has refused to sign the petition to date, and it is being enthusiastically indorsed everywhere.

All departments of the Soldiers' Service Bureau are being called upon for assistance in the various ways for which the bureau was organized. The calls for legal assistance, and medical aid have been very heavy for several days past.

All the services which the Soldiers' Service Bureau can offer are free to discharged soldiers, sailors and marines and their families.

Lawyers will be found at No. 1 Beacon street, room No. 926, and it is here that men who are ill and out of funds should apply to be insured of medical aid. Questions as to the location of various units will be answered in these columns with all the accuracy possible, and according to information from the War Department at Washington.

The following letters are self-explanatory:

Fitchburg, Mass.

Boston American,
80 Summer Street.

Dear Sirs: We are glad to say that the positions of former employes who have been in the service, whether enlisted or drafted, are open to them at the same or higher wages, and in fact many of them have returned.

If vacancies occur, preference will be given, other things being equal, to the men who have been in the service.

In some instances we have been unable to give men the exact jobs they had without unnecessary readjustment, but in every case we have given them as good a job or better, and the same wages or more.

Since some of them left, there have been wage increases, in which they are participating on their return. Just as though they had been here all the time.

Yours truly,
PARKHILL MFG. CO.,
By W. M. Allen.

The Soldiers' Friend, Boston American:

Dear Sir—Replying to your favor of January 16, all the men who left our employ to fight for the United States or her Allies will be offered employment when they return. Yours very truly,

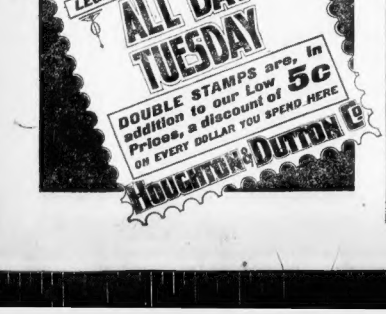
WINS DIVORCE AND $65,000 ALIMONY

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 27—Right to resume her maiden name and alimony of $65,000 were granted to Mrs. Nellie Johnson Riggs at the conclusion of her suit for divorce from Elwood Riggs. The divorce was granted on grounds of cruelty. She will return to Southbridge, Mass., where she formerly resided.

On Easter Sunday, 1902, Mrs. Riggs, then Miss Johnson, was married to Elwood Riggs in Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. Riggs came West and settled in Omaha, where Mr. Riggs went into the optical business. Today he has optical stores in a dozen big cities and is worth $200,000.

For several years there have been family troubles and three times Mrs. Riggs has cancelled her divorce. Two of the suits were dismissed by Mrs. Riggs after she and her husband became reconciled; but the third suit was pushed on the grounds of cruelty. Mr. Riggs made no contest, and Mrs. Riggs was given a divorce decree, with $65,000 alimony.



Exciting Days in Olde Virginia

ARMY MEN TO LOSE COMPANY SAVINGS

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Will the regular army become a war profiteer through the acquisition of company funds left by the demobilization of National Guard and national army organizations?

This is the question being asked today by many officers and men who have left the service and are interested in the disposition of the surplus funds which were on hand when the demobilization orders were issued.

According to a circular issued recently by the War Department, all funds of whatever nature, except those accruing from ration savings, will be converted into a check drawn to the order of the director of finance, purchase, storage and traffic division, general staff, and mailed to him with a statement showing the sources from which the funds are derived, stating separately the amount derived from each organization involved.

The amount of these checks will be deposited with the treasurer of the United States to the credit of a special deposit account.

These funds will be used only for such purposes as may hereafter be designated by the Secretary of War. Property of units serving overseas will be sold, including Liberty Bonds, and the proceeds after paying off all claims will be also paid into the finance director for deposit as above.

The nucleus of these accounts was acquired by the National Guard organizations before they were sworn into the Federal service. Upon demobilization organizations that have existed for years will be finally dissolved and their funds will be in the hands of the regulars. If the State re-establishes the guard it will have to make a fight to get back its money.

One comparatively small post located in Washington is said to have funds of more than $100,000 derived almost solely from the individual efforts of the enlisted men through entertainments, etc.

The question those boys are asking is, "Will the regulars reap the benefit of our hard work?"

SEEK HUSBAND IN RICHMOND GIRL'S DEATH

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27.—One of the most mysterious crimes in the history of the South is believed today to be near solution in the identification of the body of the young woman found on the bank of the James River December 30 as that of Mrs. Sue Kathleen Hadley. She was the talented and attractive wife of Dr. Wilmer Amos Hadley, a former army surgeon, who has disappeared and is now being sought in Texas and other States.

Mrs. Hadley, before her marriage five years ago, was Miss Sue Kathleen Tinsley of Cincinnati. She was prominent in Cincinnati social and literary circles and had a large number of friends.

Dr. Hadley disappeared from Richmond December 6, just twelve days after his wife's disappearance. On November 28 she left her apartment here apparently to take a walk with her husband. Three hours later he returned alone and told neighbors she had suddenly accepted an invitation to accompany friends touring through Richmond en route for Pittsburgh.

Several days after Dr. Hadley's disappearance his wife's sister, Mrs. A. H. Evans, wife of a wealthy chemical manufacturer in Cincinnati, received a letter from him dated December 7, from Atlanta, Ga., which stated that his wife had died in San Juan, P. R., on November 24, and that he had buried her body there in the American cemetery. He stated further that he had sailed immediately for this country and had just arrived in Atlanta.

It has been learned that Dr. Hadley received his discharge from the Westhampton Hospital here on December 5.

Naval Officer Asks Divorce, Charges Desertion

In the Suffolk Divorce Court today, before Judge Cox, Mrs. Catherine P. G. Cook filed a petition for an alimony pending the hearing of her husband's suit charging her with desertion. George Martin Cook, the husband, a graduate of Annapolis, in 1916, is a navy lieutenant-commander temporarily stationed at Washington.

They were married in New York on September 10, 1913. In Boston they lived at the Homestead Apartments and then moved to Newtonville. In December, 1915, Cook was obliged to go to Newport, where he was visited by his wife, and when he returned in 1916 she flatly refused to live with him again, he says.

At present she is receiving $125 a month to support herself and one child. He receives about $300 a month and claims he has not saved a cent since he entered the navy, because of high prices he must pay in Washington. His board and room cost him $75 each month, he declares. No definite action was taken by the court, but it was suggested that the couple meet and reach an agreement.

'REGGIE DEVOE' SET FAST PACE IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 27.—A vivid picture of the life in New York for five years of Reginald Deveille, or "Reggie Devoe," dancer, fashion designer and orientalist, was obtained today.

Deveille is held in London on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the tragic death mystery of Leona Stewart, better known as "Billie Carlton," the popular English-American actress. Testimony gathered in London was to the effect that Miss Carleton smoked opium at Deveille's well-appointed flat, No. 17 Dover street, just after died of an overdose of the drug in the apartments at the Hotel Savoy.

During the years that he lived in New York, Deveille maintained a similar apartment here in the Fifties, between Madison and Park avenues.

There he was the centre of bizarre parties. In a setting of Oriental splendor, he entertained those curious or experimentalists no less prominent than those mentioned at the London hostelry.

Deveille was said to have been a visitor, too, at the dance soirees in the home of the wealthy Mrs. Archibald Gourand, globe-trotter and priestess of occult faith, at No. 45 West Fifty-ninth street.

In New York he was known variously as "Devoe" and Deveille.

A man well known in musical comedy said that Deveille appeared first in New York as a dancer in the Foster-Ryley show entitled "The Queen of the Mouth House." He had a dance specialty which he executed cleverly. As a side line, an exceedingly lucrative one, he designed ankle bats and gowns, often he would sit down at a table in a cafe call for pad and pencil and design an extreme hat or a daring new gown that later won applause when worn by well-known actresses like Valeska Suratt, Kitty Gordon or Joan Sawyer. He did much work for the former.

His apartment in New York was like that of an East Indian potentate. Clinging Oriental draperies garbed the guests. The color motifs, designed by himself, represented nightblue Egyptian skies, sultry with the breath of tropic dreams; black and reddish crotonne, golden stars brooding above sleeping lotus blooms.

Lauds the American for Its Work at Camp Devens

Editor Boston American:

May I not express to you, on behalf of the Knights of Columbus War Activities at Camp Devens, deep appreciation of the very signal services rendered by the Boston American?

WAGE INCREASE OR STRIKE, SAY PHONE GIRLS

Boston telephone girls are ready to strike unless their demand for wage increase is granted immediately.

This was made plain at a meeting of the Joint Council of Telephone Workers of New England, at which the grievances of Boston Telephone Operators' Union were discussed.

Failure of the phone girls to receive satisfaction from Postmaster-General Burleson last August has resulted in a bitter feeling here, indicating that action of a drastic nature will be resorted to unless their demands are forthcoming.

A strike forestore has only been prevented through the constant work of President Julia O'Connor, Mary Mahoney and May June, members of the conference board.

That the threat is not confined solely to the operators was manifested at the meeting, when it was made known that the mechanical departments maintained that the manager's refusal of the local company had broken a pre-war agreement by the issuing of an order that all men employed less than thirty months with the company shall be discharged as a measure of economy affecting men who went to war and have not yet returned.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

A Well Known Actress Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well known American actress, who was recently playing at the Imperial Theatre in St. Louis, Mo., made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or any druggist can put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. The mixture is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought but these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

There is nothing so good for children's skin and scalp troubles as Cadum Ointment

Cadum Ointment can be applied to the tender skin of infants and children suffering from rashes, itch, eczema, chafing and similar troubles. It stops the suffering at once, and much suffering from skin troubles may be avoided by the timely use of this wonderful remedy. Cadum Ointment is the ideal remedy for pimples, blotches, itch, scaly skin, eruptions, sores, scabs, cuts, burns, ringworm, etc.

NUXATED IRON

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Then take two 5-grain tablets of NUXATED IRON three times per day after meals for two weeks and then test your strength again. Numerous cases have been reported where people have made astonishing gains in strength and endurance, entirely overcoming indigestion, constipation and many other troubles after taking Nuxated Iron for a few weeks. Nuxated Iron is guaranteed to give satisfaction or your money will be refunded. Obtainable at most druggists.

BLISS NATIVE HERB TABLETS TONIGHT AT BEDTIME

If you feel out-of-sorts, sick-down or "all in" from constipation, if the bowels are constipated, or your liver is out of order, take BLISS NATIVE HERB TABLETS. In stubborn cases of headache, biliousness or sluggish liver, they may be taken two, three or even more nightly. Results are guaranteed. Bliss Native Herb Tablets are gently mild, but thorough. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken. Contain no calomel, no opium, no habit-forming drugs. Try them and feel the fresh morning after. Sold by leading druggists and local agents everywhere.

STATE LOSES IMPORTANT WITNESS

tioned in the case. It is stated that the elder of the girls, to whom he transferred his affections from the younger, belonged to a secret sisterhood cult headed by the clergyman.

Worn with grief and heated by the bitter experience she will have to bear throughout what the future holds in store, the death of her beloved daughter, Mrs. Fannie Stevens, mother of the dead woman, has already been here several days. She and Stevens, the clergyman's fourteen-year-old daughter, with Medical Examiner George R. Magrath of Suffolk County, Mass., are expected to be the State's chief witnesses.

Mrs. Stevens has spent much of her time in conference with attorneys, going over the evidence, especially that which relates to the pastor's home life.

SAYS HE IS INNOCENT.

Hall stubbornly insists that he is innocent. As he sat in his cell anxiously awaiting the time when, tomorrow morning, he will be led out for trial, he said:

"I am awaiting my trial unapprehensive, sure of the verdict that will be returned. I am innocent and have nothing to fear. This the world will soon know."

The only other occupant of the eight-cell hall is Robert L. Mapes of Saco who was arrested after a battle with the police when he held his parents and an aunt prisoners in his home, while he guarded the place with a loaded revolver, knives and an ax.

MAGRATH TO BE WITNESS.

Medical Examiner Magrath of Boston was scheduled to arrive here today. The findings of Medical Examiners Traynor and McDonnell were submitted to him for analysis.

Marked with her ineffable sorrow, Mrs. Stevens is one of the strongest features of the trial. For, no one did she know of the life of her daughter and Hall that she knew too of his actions at the time of that daughter's funeral. Here is the sad story that she will tell the court.

Bent and lined, silver-haired, and wearing the simple black that proclaims her loss to God, and prayerfully promises to focus upon herself the entire sympathy of the courtroom, she, clean-minded and innocent of the world's iniquities to an almost shocking degree, Mrs. Stevens is bound to suffer greater sorrow, with the revelations that the State promises to make, regarding Pastor Hall's life, and loves.

With legal conferences behind closed doors, with witnesses being given final hearings before Attorney-General Ray Sturges and his assistants, the stage is rapidly being set for the first curtain that goes up this morning at the courthouse.

Examination of the first of a hundred talesmen will begin at the very opening of court, tomorrow. Here, both the prosecution and the defense, it is said, will be the big difficulty of the trial. In a rural community, such as Wareham, it is almost practically impossible to secure a jury in a case that has been given such wide publicity as that of Pastor Hall.

As the Maine law reads, the State has ten peremptory challenges and the defence twenty. After the twelve men are selected, the latter may then challenge two more and the State has the same privilege. According to the prevailing good Mather Folk who live within reach of the courthouse as an interesting event, and one that will serve to entertain them well during the next ten days.

TO EXAMINE 100 TALESMEN.

GIRLS FIGURE AS MOTIVE.

The State claims as a motive for the crime that Hall was deeply charged with an infatuation for the two Stevens sisters. It is said that he was first enamored of Rest Gross, thrown, and that he later transferred as always unalienable affection to the older sister, Grace. Both of these girls have been called by the defence. The State also will call to the witness stand one of the Gross girls and maintains that Pastor Hall was most solicitous of himself in his wife, who was a semi-invalid. That he desired to wed a younger and more attractive bride, that he planned to rid himself of his wife to the motive ascribed to the man who today stands charged with the murder of that wife by pushing her into a small railroad bridge over the Little River, about three quarters of a mile from the Wareham Station.

There are to be 125 witnesses called—and many of these have already gone to Fall River, while others are either in hotels in Biddeford or in Portland.

FITZHUGH SUES GRAND TRUNK FOR $200,000

vasion into the New England transportation field. He declares that the campaign has been kept on until today and he is ready for trial on the occupation to which he was trained.

In addition to the Grand Trunk and the Central Vermont roads the following officials are mentioned in the suit: Alfred W. Smith of London, chairman of the Grand Trunk directorate; Edson J. Chamberlain, Ottawa, first vice president of the Grand Trunk, and Joseph R. Seller, St. Albans, Vt., who succeeded the plaintiff as president of the Central Vermont railroad.

The former vice-president has not been active in railroad affairs for several years. The lawsuit comes as a surprise.

While Boston people who were interested in the original suit have seen the Grand Trunk and the New York, New Haven & Hartford lines, not learned the details of Mr. Fitzhugh's allegations, they predict a revival of the bitterness of the stirring days of 1911-12, and a legal battle which will shake high financial circles, not only here, but in Canada.

Massachusetts is involved in the charges under which it was abandoned to the mercies of the New Haven road, after the Grand Trunk had made a strong bid for a share of the business," said a former railroad man today.

"Canadian influence which became paramount in the Grand Trunk on the death of Mr. Hays was responsible for withdrawal from the Massachusetts field, after the New Haven crown, bridges up, and victory in sight. The real fight is now on, and certainly those who had if the Grand Trunk stands trial and there is a finish fight."

Mr. Fitzhugh was known to Boston people in 1911 and 1912 as one of the most active and influential friends this section of New England had in the councils of the Grand Trunk system, and a strong advocate of invasion of the field. When Mr. Hays was drowned Mr. Fitzhugh was regarded as his logical successor, because of his strong and sympathy with the policy of expansion. To the surprise of American stockholders he was not selected for the presidency by Canadian votes, but his influence abroad, and his control was flagrantly disregarded by his Canadian colleagues.

The situation became progressively worse until Mr. Fitzhugh's resignation, and the definite and final abandonment of the Massachusetts scheme, which had already cost thousands of dollars.

Since that time Mr. Fitzhugh's activities in the financial field have not been spectacular, although those wise in the ways of finance have been aware of the open hostility between the former prophet of Grand Trunk expansion and those who had combined to oust him.

ANTI-TOBACCO DRIVE IS NEXT; 'NO SMOKES'

Lady Nicotine is next.

Having W. C. T. U. workers who assisted in knocking John Barleycorn through the ropes are already preparing to officiate at the early demise of the tobacco habit by a Federal amendment to the constitution, if necessary.

The W. C. T. U. people have not officially committed themselves to the campaign against tobacco, according to Miss Anna A. Gordon, president of the W. C. T. U., but Miss Gordon says that the organization is committed to influence Congress to prohibit the manufacture and sale of tobacco. She says that prohibition is a matter of education.

"We have a strong sentiment in my country in my mind that the tobacco habit is very fashionable in various many lines," said Miss Caswell, "and I certainly would be in favor of an active campaign against it, just the same."

To Stuyvesant, N. Y., must go the distinction of being the first community to remove the anti-liquor episode with the anti-tobacco crusade. Professor Frederick W. Hooson of the department of economics at Syracuse University originated the idea by turning the canvass efforts again "the weed" in the last few years into one gigantic

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually gives quick relief. Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

May Rename German Street, Dorchester, for War Hero

A petition asking that German street, Dorchester, be changed to Birchwood street, has been filed with the Street Commissioners. The hearing will take place Thursday.

At that time it is expected that a new petition will be filed supplanting Birchwood with the name of a war hero of the section.

Already the board has under consideration the change of several street names in honor of heroes, including Arthur street, Roxbury, to Crosier; Hamburg street, South End, to Ryan, and Bowen street, Charlestown, to Carney.

Petitions may be made before March 1 for a change in name to Jane Norfolk, Arthur Woodward, Walk Hill street and Rose Hill avenue, engaged in Walk Hill street.

WOMAN LOSES LIFE IN FIRE; MAN HELD

Following the death of Mrs. Mazie Jaranson, of No. 11 Vernon place, North End, from burns received when her bed clothing caught fire, Judge Bennett of the Municipal Court today granted a warrant charging manslaughter against Adolph W. Anderson, thirty, of East Boston.

Mrs. Jaranson ran a women's lodging house. She was found by Asst. Lieut. Edward Walsh, who had responded to a call from Anderson's room. Walsh found Mrs. Jaranson lying dead on the floor, with all the "moral forces" of the country lined up.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, and, like forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps on accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually setting in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these poisonous toxins.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a powerful, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well. Advertisement.

Boarders

THERE is a very considerable portion of the population of any great city who are boarders.

To one who is looking for a place to board or to the landlady who is looking for boarders, American Want Ads are a certain meeting place.

There are all degrees of permanency to be found in the population.

Some are in the city but for a day or night, and most of these seek a hotel.

A great many are here in a more or less fixed situation, and these have a home of their own.

But there is a very large class between these two extremes.

They do not wish to live in a hotel, and their prospects are not settled enough to warrant them in renting a house or an apartment.

It is these who want a comfortable place to board.

Besides, there are any number of young men without family, and many young women who are alone, workers in the great hive of industry, who naturally seek a boarding house.

There are many organizations and agencies which supply lists of boarding houses, such as the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association, the Young Men's Hebrew Association and the various churches.

But the list that is consulted by all, the list that is most complete and up-to-date is that which is found in the Want Ad columns of the Boston Evening American.

It is the stranger's guide, and has brought satisfaction to many a one who without it would have been put to annoyance, delay and needless expense.

Those who are willing to take boarders also find these columns to be of very practical use.

A little Want Ad inserted in The American is pretty sure to bring the patronage that is desired.

Many a family has been enabled to make a little extra money by renting the spare room, and has found an agreeable tenant through The American Want Ad.

There is probably no kind of business, except it be the matter of finding employment, where the Want Ads of the newspaper do a more homely and human service than in this of securing suitable lodgings for those who desire them.

We must all live. And a proper living place is our first requirement.

A man's work is immediately affected by the room to which he goes at night and from which he comes in the morning.

And this is still more true in the case of the woman worker.

It is The American Want Ad which to multitudes of the city's workers is "guide, philosopher and friend."

CALIFORNIA'S NEW FISTIC STAR MAKES HUB BOW TONIGHT

By NICK FLATLEY.

MATTERS have finally been smoothed out at the Central A. C. headquarters and the club put on a fight show tonight that should go through without any hitches whatsoever. The heat system has been installed, as well as the complete wooden flooring, and both principals for the main go have been in town for a couple of days, putting the finishing touches on their training, as they say.

Battling Ortega, who makes his first appearance in the Eastern part of the world, comes along with a fine reputation as an exceedingly dangerous middleweight. He has brushed off a flock of enemies out on the coast, among other things having the newspaper beat of Champion Ted (Kid) Lewis in a four-round affair. The longer distance shouldn't worry him in the least, as he is built on enduring lines and is in very good fettle.

According to far Westerners, Ortega is a rushing, busy sort of a boxer, who packs a mean wallop and knows the points of the science. McTighe, who is a boxing instructor in Gotham, hasn't such a nifty repute as his younger opponent, but he will have an advantage in height, reach and weight. 'Tis said of him, also, that he knocks them flat when he makes proper connections. Incidentally, he shows hereabouts for the first time.

Ortega is gunning for a quarrel hereabouts with Champion Lewis, and doubtless will be matched up immediately if he's as good as advertised. He weighs, in trim, about 155, while McTighe will scale slightly more.

Parker and Buckley to Furnish Lively Tilt.

THE customary three preliminaries introduce the main event, with the semifinal shaping up as quite a tilt. K. O. Chick Miller takes his new nickname out for exhibition and stacks up against Johnny McMenamin, who also are good hitters and in eight rounds—if it goes that far—will furnish a flock of battling. Dan Donovan and Young Joe Leonard go over his six-round trail, as do Young Chaney and Bert Jones.

Local fandom is quite stirred up about the Charley Parker-Johnny Buckley joust at the Armory, tomorrow evening, and a big crowd is sure to watch these nifty lightweights have it out. Both youngsters have fought well and often at the Boston clubs and have taught the boxing folk to expect much execution when they appear.

Opinion is fairly evenly divided as to the result. Buckley being figured clever enough to stall off properly Parker's wicked wallops. Johnny can hit a bit himself, and Charley is quite clever, so, all in all, considerable scrap is in prospect.

The semi-final to this bout, with Bell and Flynn hooked up, is one more mingle that should help make the week joyful for Mr. Ring Rooter.

Announcing Unsigned Matches Bad Policy for Lynn Club.

THE Casino A. C. of Lynn takes its initial plunge Saturday of the present week and should boom along to great success with the correct kind of operating. Right off the reel, however, the club is likely to get in bad announcing matches which have not really been made. Whether official or not, an all-star card for the opening show has been announced, that would make a very good card, save for one important fact. Some of the battlers don't know yet they're supposed to quarrel.

Chick Hayes of Indianapolis has been tied with Tony Vatlin, yet neither the former, nor the latter's manager, has any information about the affair. A club that announces a card, and then switches it, never gets anywhere; especially a new one. It may be, though, that some member of the great army of self-appointed assistant promoters is stepping into the Lynn machinery.

RINGSIDE'S SELECTIONS

Battling Ortega to beat Mike McTighe.

Dan Donovan to beat Joe Leonard.

Bert Jones to beat Young Chaney.

K. O. Chick Miller to beat Johnny McMinimen.

SUITS HARVARD TO RETURN TO NEW LONDON

Harvard's athletic committee, at least such members as are in the city, will meet tonight in Dean Yeoman's office for the chief purpose of hearing the advisory committee on crew outline rowing plans for the season.

It is believed that the rowing committee favors a resumption of the New London regatta with Yale. This race is always largely attended and one of the big features of commencement week.

There appears considerable doubt, however, that the committee will sanction the men spending a month at Red Top preparing for the race.

3 P. M.—Compares himself to Napoleon. He's dead. Claims his head is a ringer for statue of Apollo. All marble. Thinks his features resemble the bust of Alexander. Righto. The Kaiser is a bust. Orders an omelet without eggs.
6 P. M.—Tells valet to paddle the goldfish, as he wants to take a walk in his new wooden shoes. How dozze get that way?
Dinner—Almost takes a bath. Cuts out an army or paper dolls and orders Ritz to take Paris.
8 P. M.—Tries a graphophone record and plays a buckwheat cake on the machine instead. Needle scratches buckwheat cake and Kaiser orders three hospital ships sunk for dessert.
Midnight—Has his royal picture taken dealing a poker hand from the bottom of the deck. Has tailor measure him for a new set of Iron Crosses. Wears his wooden shoes to bed.

WON'T be able to get a headache after July the Once in the old way. Still, you can get almost as good results by banging yourself on the skullpiece with a hammer.

CAN'T see where the ex-manager of a fighter has it any worse than the manager of an ex-fighter.

BUDDY, you said it then.

AFTER having invented golf pool, which is the only perfect way of ruining an afternoon, Jack Doyle has popped up with tailor pool. One player shoots the pills into the table's hip pockets. The other bird has the vest and coat pockets. Whoever pulls the most buttons off the wire wins the game and has to press creases in the legs of the table. Therefore, whoever wins, loses. That's what makes it so intricate.

AWFUL stuff, eating in a flapjack restaurant now. When you wipe your chin and reach for anybody's overcoat, the waitress punches your draft number in your cheek. Two egg- touch into six figures.

THERE will be a lot of queer stances at the plate next Summer. Some of the boys will be trying to bayonet the ball. And charity won't begin at the home plate when some absent-minded sucker steps up to the rubber and waves his bat like a paint brush.

PAT DONOVAN AIMS TO LOCATE IN PROVIDENCE

New York, Jan. 27.—"Circuit construction" is the one big problem of the International League. If Sunday baseball should be legalized in New York State, it is the general impression Syracuse will be retained in the circuit. Pat Donovan is endeavoring to find a home for the waif in Providence.

Newark and Jersey City magnates are already making every effort to rekindle the old inter-city rivalry that made minor league baseball so profitable in those municipalities. Bill Donovan, Jersey City manager, has already arranged to secure surplus talent from the Detroit Tigers and one National League club.

SMITH EXPOSES MONEY PLOT IN BIG GO

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Edward Smith, well-known referee and sports editor of the Chicago Evening American, today published the following comment on the Jess Willard-Tex Rickard fight compact entered into last Friday:

"One man who is no credit to any game has offered another man, who is no credit at all to the boxing game, the sum of $100,000 to display a questionable line of goods in the fighting arena.

"Tex Rickard says he will give Jess Willard that amount to fight some other man, younger and vastly more capable in every way. This latter statement for whichever opponent is selected.

"Rickard, who is not the world's greatest promoter, should not attempt to fool other people with a scheme of this sort containing such a joker.

"When he offers to give Willard 100,000 he is acting merely as agent for the public. The public must subscribe this amount to Willard, not Rickard. The money must come through the gate. The public must pay.

"That being an established fact, as will be apparent with a moment's thought, the question naturally arises: Will the American public care to enrich this man Willard and his agent, Rickard, to any extent at all to witness a contest of this character which, on the face of it is merely commercialism, pure and simple?

"Is the American public going to fatten the bankroll of this man who failed utterly, and to the great discredit of the entire sporting world, at a time when the country's war funds needs every loan it can get?

"Is he going to put over this gigantic sum for his own benefit, for the benefit of a champion title-holder who was asked to help American service boys times without number and declined to do so, fleecing miserably?

"We believe not.

(Signed) "ED. W. SMITH."

HERRMANN CABLES BIG SIX AS TO DISCHARGE

Cincinnati, Jan. 27.—President August Herrmann of the Reds, at the direction of a director of the club, cabled Christy Mathewson, asking him his prospects on being discharged from the army in France and his attitude on the managership of the Reds.

If it is impossible for Mathewson to get out of the army a search will be made for a new manager, it was stated.

PAL MOORE TO BATTLE DICK LOADMAN TONIGHT

RITCHIE IS AFTER LEONARD BOUT, HE TELLS TAD

By TAD.

San Francisco, Jan. 27.—A certain gentleman out here by the name of Willie Ritchie has designs upon lightweight Champion B. Leonard.

Mr. Ritchie at one time had the lightweight title tucked away in the old family trunk, but went to bloomin' London and blew it to Freddie Welsh.

Then along came our Bennie from the Bronx and knocked Mr. Welsh from under his hat.

Mr. Ritchie has been in the army for quite a spell now and feels that his condition is cherry ripe. He not only feels that his physical condition is wonderful, but his mental condition is wonderful, too.

He says he has more under the hood than now than a Philadelphia lawyer. He would like to quarrel with our Mr. Leonard from the Bronx, New York. He really thinks that he could spank our Bennie.

No one will deny Willie the privilege of thinking. Jim Coffroth, who has the handling of the big show here at present, listened kindly to the suggestion of a Leonard-Ritchie match, but will have to wait until Gibson and Lenard arrive before he can say whether it's a go or not.

Leonard's first fight here will be with a local lad by the name of Joe Benjamin. They say that Joe can sock, but whether he can land the old haymaker is the question.

They know Leonard here. They know that he is a gifted gent. The fans here know it just as well as they know Jack Dempsey thus.

The Frisco lightweight's followers, however, will take a chance. They don't insist that Benny enter the ring a la Houdini.

RUGGLES HALL SCENE OF BIG COURT BATTLE

The Brooklyn and Filton A. C. (two of greater Boston's strongest basketball clubs) battle for the championship of the season in Ruggles Hall, Roxbury, this evening. Filton has won two New Year's Eve games played on their floor, after a battle royal. Captain Jack Connell, Fuzzy Hedison, Donnelly and Freeman will be on duty for the Brooklyn, while Mitchell, Ray Carroll, Doc Cassidy, O'Connell, the Filton A. C. standbys, will oppose them. Babe Hahn, Red Rowe and Lee advertised to act as referee. Play at 8 o'clock, with dancing following.

HARVARD IS TO BID FOR TITLE TRACK MEET

New York, Jan. 27.—The I. C. A. A. A. A. is out to have all members of the S. A. T. C. who continued in college without interruption, and all students who entered the service or engaged in war work, to be eligible for competition in all events this year.

Recommendations to this effect are to be adopted by the executive committee at its meeting held here, and these will be presented at the annual convention of the organization, which will be held at the Columbia University Club, March 1.

Two stipulations were made, however, one of which was that the men should have reported back to their universities by January 1, and the other that these still in service should be back in college within three weeks after their discharge or resignation, but not later than April 1.

There will be no indoor meet held by the association this year.

No intimation made at the meeting where the intercollegiates would be held, May 29 and 30, but it is expected that both Harvard and Pennsylvania will make application for the games.

Secret Life and Loves of the Ex-Czarina

PART IV.—Continued.

IMMEDIATELY after the coronation an incident occurred which was long and successfully kept from anybody's knowledge save the very few who were eyewitnesses, myself among the number. Both Emperor and Empress were, after the ceremony, passing through the narrow pathway which led from the Cathedral of the Assumption to the Church of the Archangels, where the Czars of Moscow are buried, when Nicholas suddenly halted, staggered and almost fell.

A Significant Accident

The sceptre of Russia fell from his grasp, crashed upon the stones, and one golden wing of the Russian eagle was broken off by the fall.

His Majesty sank unconscious into the arms of the priest walking at his side. The procession halted, water was brought and dashed into the monarch's face, while Alix stood aside, scared and anxious.

He recovered as quickly as he had collapsed. The explanation given to those around was the weight of the heavy gold mantle and the heavier weight of the imperial crown.

But I found myself wondering—as, no doubt, others who witnessed the incident wondered—whether the dropping of the insignia of the imperial autocracy was not a sign of not only physical, but of moral weakness.

That was the second contretemps. But a third, and more serious one, was to follow.

Though next day and on the five days that followed Moscow was in a whirl of gayety, with balls and festivities on every hand, more especially the great ball given by the nobles to the court and the wonderful gala performance at the Opera, the great function of the people was still to come.

It is the custom on the crowning of a Czar to give a great feast to the peasants and poorer classes in Moscow and neighborhood in a large open space called the Khodinka Field, about two miles out of the city. This fete is always attended by hundreds of thousands of people, while the monarch and his consort look upon the feast from a pavilion erected upon one side of the huge space, troops being present to keep order.

At the hundreds of tables the people feast to their heart's content; presents are made of mugs to the men and gaudy handkerchiefs to the women, with commemorative medals, and afterwards there are all sorts of open air theatres, swings, roundabouts and all the fun of a gigantic fair. All are welcome; therefore a huge concourse of people always gathers on the occasion.

A Black-Hand Letter

This was no exception. I was feeling unwell, therefore did not attend, but an hour before the imperial party were all round, and the Empress came into my room, greatly agitated, and exclaimed:

"Look, Zeneide, what I have found open upon Nikki's desk! He has not told me of it," and handed me a half-sheet of blue notepaper, whereon in Russian were written the words:

"The German woman is not welcome in Russia! You have chosen to insult the empire by your marriage, and the Russian people have already had sufficient of you and of your haughty wife. We, the friends of the exiles Zounef, Stolypinski and Vera Voedovski, warn you both. If you value your lives, do not appear upon the Khodinka Field today. We want a Russian Empress, not a doll from Berlin."

I read it, and remained silent.

The Empress, dressed ready for the great entertainment to the people, stood pale and anxious.

"What can it mean, Zeneide?" she asked, her lips quivering. "Do they intend to assassinate us as they did Alexander II.?"

"It is anonymous, and for that reason the Emperor disregards it," I suggested.

"The chief of the secret police had audience an hour ago, probably on account of the letter," replied the Empress.

"Then due precautions will no doubt be taken. The secret police are ubiquitous, as you know. One should trust them," I urged.

"True. But how could such a letter as this get into the palace?" she queried. "As soon as I found it I took it to Nikki. But he merely laughed, and said that he had found it lying upon his private desk. It had not gone through the hands of either of his secretaries; therefore, there must be treachery somewhere in our court?"

"The truth will be discovered, no doubt," I said. "I cannot see cause for undue alarm."

"Because I Am German"

"But cannot you see how these people hate me because I am German?" she cried, highly indignant at the insulting reference to herself. "There is one thing," she added grimly, "I hate them all with a far greater hate, for they are merely flocks of fat-faced sheep in silks and uniforms."

It pained me to see how by her own haughtiness, lack of tact and assumption of superiority, she had so entirely alienated herself from the hearts of the Russians of every class. Discovery of that letter, however, seemed to fasten her determination more fixed than ever, and increase her detestation of everything Russian.

"I fear, Zeneide, to go today," she went on in a cold, changed tone. "I feel some strange presage of evil. Remember that 'Befana' fair in Rome and its tragic result?"

I laughed at her, telling her to put aside such morbid fancies, and to return the letter to the Emperor and think no more of it. Why should the great coronation festivities be thus marred?

"Besides," I added, "the ceremony must take place. You cannot be absent, for that would increase the dissatisfaction of the people, which, after all, you can easily live down."

"Live down!" she cried, her eyes flashing angrily at my presumption. "My dear Zeneide, I intend to teach these people that we Germans are the super-race."

At that very hour when we had been talking there had occurred a terrible tragedy, which, for the time, was being most carefully hushed-up from the imperial court.

As horrified Europe afterwards knew, owing to a blunder of the troops and the police sent to the protection of the imperial pair congesting the discovery of that warning letter, a most fearful catastrophe occurred.

A Terrible Tragedy

In order to prevent the great crowds from entering the field except by the gates, deep ditches had been dug all round, and these had become filled with water. The joicing crowds had ever since early morning been pouring in, and, eager into the field, to secure the best places. The troops had held them in check, because the ground had not yet been officially inspected. The police tried to stem the great human tide advancing upon the place, and had succeeded in forcing them back upon the oncoming crowd. Then a most terrible panic ensued. Women and children were flung down and trampled to death while the crowds, unaware of the huge ditches, fell into them and were smothered and drowned.

The panic was frightful. Thousands of men, women and children lost their lives within the next hour. Yet the ceremony had to proceed.

BUT there was no sign of her coming and no information was vouchsafed by Taylor as to whether he had confronted her with the story Reed had related. The mining expert was in the dark, but he had only one object and that was to push the contract through and receive the certified checks as soon as he could.

"These seem to be in order," said Taylor, laying down the papers, "and now Mr. Reed, I suppose you have the power of attorney from Roach."

Reed produced it from his portfolio, and Taylor, receiving it, passed it on to the Judge. It was made out in due form.

"Well, we seem to be all set," said the Judge. "I suppose you have the checks, Charles."

The latter nodded—Reed and the Judge approached the table to affix their signatures, the one as principal and the other as witness. Taylor, rising, was holding the pen, preparing to pass it to Reed, when the butler appeared in the door with a note.

When he saw the others he drew back, but Taylor paused—"what is it?"

"A letter, sir." The butler's manner was so flustered, contrary to his usual stolid demeanor, that Taylor beckoned him to approach, and taking the note from the silver salver, observed that the writer no doubt determination more fixed than ever, and increase her detestation of everything Russian.

"Excuse me one minute," he said, motioning the butler to go, and hastily tearing the envelope, began to read the letter Helen had written him, which she had asked the butler to mail, but which that individual, scenting trouble, had preferred to deliver as soon as possible.

Taylor read through the note and then said calmly: "Gentlemen, we won't sign for a few minutes."

Read the Letter

With the contents of the letter before him revealing the duplicity of Reed, Taylor was at a loss how to proceed. Should he condemn the mining expert or force him to face the girl who accused him?

He summoned all his self-command to his aid and managed to look at the expert without betraying what was in his mind.

Judge Blake showed his astonishment. "What's wrong, Charles, nothing serious, I hope?"

"Nothing to do with the matter in hand," answered the other. "I have received a little information here which makes it imperative for me to spend a few minutes out of the room. Will you excuse me?"

Without waiting for a reply he left, determined to find Mrs. Collins and see if she could throw any light on the remarkable statement he held in his hand.

Mr. Reed was palpably nervous and the efforts of the Judge to keep up a conversation on every day subjects proved an abject failure.

"It seems to me," said Blake with a smile, "that there's a hoodoo about this mine—first one thing and then another. Let's get together to sign up something uncanny turns up. I declare I'm beginning to get quite superstitious."

Reed made no reply—indeed there was nothing he could say, and to hide his nervousness he walked to the window.

They Wait for Taylor

Judge Blake sat the desk and began to play with a paper cutter in a listless way, glancing now and again at the door to wait for the return of Taylor. Before him lay three certified checks, each for $100,000, made out to George Reed as the agent of the syndicate and the representative of Roach.

It was some moments before Taylor came back, and when he did he appeared to be in no hurry to finish the transaction which he had been in such haste to begin.

"If you don't mind we'll wait a few minutes more," he said, sitting down, Mr. Reed." The mining expert was becoming more and more agitated. To have the prize within his reach, and yet finding him served to add to his unrest. His small eyes studied in a furtive way the face of Taylor, who avoided looking at him.

The Judge had risen with the entrance of his friend and now crossed to him and spoke in a whisper.

Taylor shook his head. "We won't keep you long, Judge."

There was a rustling of skirts, the portieres were pushed aside, and into the library came Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Blake and Helen, the latter in a simple gown and a simpler hat—Helen of the Golden Yolce, the idolon of Nugget City, as Reed had seen her there prior to her departure for a world unknown.

The girl stood and faced him. Taylor spoke with an ominous calm.

"Mr. Reed, this young lady and you have met before; do you recognize her?"

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

A New Serial of Young Wedded Life

CHAPTER LXVIII.—(Continued)

"O, was it because it had piqued him to have Evvy send him out to see Sheldon unceremoniously while she stayed alone with Jim?

"We'd turn and drive home now, if you've had enough," Sheldon answered grimly.

Evidently he was sensitive, and my reply to his last bit of sentiment—had hurt him.

"Will you bring me out again?" I ventured to placate him.

He turned and gripped my hand.

"Surest thing you know! And perhaps some day Jimmie and his sister Virginia, too!"

At this I smiled to myself. Of course! Why had I forgotten Virginia? It was because of her, no doubt, that Sheldon was cultivating me, and he was making the biggest mistake in thinking I could help him with her. But not even the thought of Virginia could spoil the sunset.

As we drove home in the afterglow and the twilight, the quick lush of understanding in that last moment kept us silent. I felt sure Sheldon was thinking of Virginia, and the person of whom I was thinking was Jim. I was exasperated to her. I kept wondering over and over:

"Is Jim happy alone with Evvy —or does he wonder what I am doing?"

In the fast-falling twilight I took off my hat and let the little evening breeze play through my hair. When we came to the dark of that cliff-long path I thought I felt Sheldon's hand on my hair.

"You're sweet—little Lisa lady —very sweet. We'll come again," he whispered.

All in a second I slipped on my hat. In another moment we were back on the bright main path.

I was a little frightened and conscious. Sheldon knew and tugged my hair almost carelessly.

Was that for Virginia—or because any woman was "just game" for him?

Getting Too Fat? Try This Reduce

People who don't grow too fat are the fortunate exception. But if you find the fat accumulating or already troublesome, you will be wise to follow this suggestion, which is endorsed by thousands of people from book. Ask your druggist for it or just prefer write to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. for a free case of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Go by the orders the world over. By doing this you will be safe from harmful drugs and be able to reduce two, three or four pounds a week without dieting or exercise.

turned from our drive twilight, had deepened to dusk. And both of us were in a subdued mood before dinner—I at least. He'd gray car at the curb and hurried up to my apartment.

"Hello, the house! De Rip Van Winkle and the Sleeping Beauty abide here!" called Sheldon breaking the spell. But it could be banished only by dissolving the shadows and mystery of the room. So I pressed the switch and flooded the place with light. Then Evvy laughed hysterically and cried:

"See, you two barbarians from the outer world, don't you know a spare bird that is bad for Ripe eyes?"

"This isn't as inspiring a lighting scheme as that wonderful sunset or the dimly little path in the park, is it?" I said in a voice I hoped was provoking.

Sheldon got his cue.

"Hush! That's our own special path—lady Anne—and we don't want to share with the world," he murmured.

"Our path—all ours? You haven't showed to another soul?"

As I asked it, I whipped off my hat and fluffed up my hair with my fingers, sending a little of that world wisdom that probably was born in Mother Eve.

"It's all ours, and if you'll only stand with the candle-light on that wonderful hair for a minute more, I'll be tempted to offer you the world—not a mere path."

"And if I pose in the candle-light for an hour—" I asked, daringly, "will you promise to stay and keep me from getting tired and —lonely?"

"You try me!"

As he replied, Sheldon came to my side and slipped a supporting hand under each elbow. His eyes sparkled. Evidently this was a game he was playing. Truth to tell it made me most uncomfortable—but to counterbalance that there was the hope that Jim would notice how the man in the case was "playing up." Instead he called it great amusement.

"You look pretty enough to kiss, kiddie—all flushed and windblown. It's a pity I can't run over and do it, but I refuse to appoint Sheldon a committee of one to attend to it for me. Lisa-ish like a dutiful wife, you come to Friend Husband."

"How disappointing you are, Jimmie," cried Evvy with a quick flash of her eyes at Sheldon. "Any regular husband would be jealous of our handsome Shelly. Can't you see how dangerous he is?"

When I reached the couch Jim drew me down to his side, gave me a careless kiss, and said:

"Anne, I want you to persuade Evvy to take the money she won. Twice we played 'Mother or quits,' and twice she chose that clever child defeated me utterly. Some checker-queen, Evvy. Take your money, lady-bird—it's hers!"

Sheldon looked uneasily at Evvy.

"Oh, why all the fuss, Jimmie-boy?" broke in the girl before Sheldon could reply. "You don't have to call in Anne and Shelly as referees. This is between us. I come to amuse my invalid, not to fleece him. You weren't playing your usual game, and my bets are off. If I beat another word about this Evvy here I'll never play any games at all with you any more!"

Lift Out Your Corns

ICE-MINT

The New Discovery Ends All

Foot Troubles

The new discovery, made from a Japanese product, is certainly a wonder the way it draws out inflammation from a mite of swollen, burning, aching foot. It takes the soreness right out, then the corn or callous shrivels and lifts off.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful. Just think not one bit of pain while applying Ice-Mint or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

You will never have to cut a corn again and run the risk of blood poison. Say good-bye to your old corn salve, plasters and bungling tape, for that pet corn of yours is sure to be a "goner" if it ever feels the magic touch of Ice-Mint.

It imparts such a delightful, soothing feeling to the feet that you will sigh with relief.

Ice-Mint is the real Japanese secret for fine, healthy little feet. It prevents foot odors and keeps them sweet and comfortable. It is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who have to stand on their feet all day.

Just ask in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your feet a suffering, tired, swollen feet the treat of their lives. It costs little, and there is nothing better.

Man Who Lost Himself

By H. DE VERE STACPOOLE

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued.

HE heard Big Ben booming six o'clock. He had three hours still before him, and he determined to take it out in walking. He would go citywards and then come back with an appetite for breakfast.

Having made this resolve, he started, passing through the deserted streets till he reached the bank, and then onwards till he reached the Mile End Road.

As he walked he made plans. When he had drawn his money he would breakfast at a restaurant, he fixed upon Romanos', eggs and bacon and sausages, coffee and hot rolls would be the menu. Then he felt he wondering whether Romanos' would be open for breakfast, or whether it was of the type of restaurant that only serves luncheons and dinners. If it were, then he could breakfast at the Charing Cross Hotel.

These considerations led him a good distance on his way. Then the Mile End Road looked long, lying straight and foreign looking, and empty in the sunlight. The barometer man's weather apparatus must have been at fault, for in all the sky there was not a cloud, nor the symptom of the coming of a cloud.

Away down near the docks a clock over a public house pointed to half past seven, and he judged it time to return.

Fleet Street Empty

He came back. The Mile End road was still deserted, the city round the bank was destitute of life. Fleet street empty.

'Pompeii lay not more utterly dead than this weird city of vast business palaces, and the Strand showed Sunday life, or at almost nothing; every shop was shuttered, though now it was close upon 9 o'clock.

Some plague had happened to London, some blight had fallen on the inhabitants, death seemed everywhere, and he, he but that strange recollections of weird stories by H. G. Wells passed through the mind of Jones. He recalled the city of London when the Martians had done with it, that city of death, and horror, and sunlight and silence.

Then of a sudden, as he neared the law courts, the appalling truth suddenly suggested itself to him.

He walked up to a policeman on point duty and addressed a policeman who seemed under the influence of the general gloom and delight, a policeman who might have been the blue concrete core of negation.

"Say, officer," said Jones, "what day's today?"

"Sunday," said the policeman.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Just Man Angered

WHEN things are piled one on top of another beyond a certain height, they generally come down with a crash.

That one word "Sunday" was the last straw for Jones, sweeping away breakfast, bank and everything; coming on top of the events of the last twenty-four hours, it brought his mental complacency to ruin, ruin from which after losing jots of wrath.

Red rage filled him. He had been made game of, every man and everything was against him. Well, he would bite. He would attack, careless of everything, heedless of everything.

A mesmerized looking taxi-cab, crawling along on the opposite side of the way, fortunately caught his eye.

"I'll make her!" cried Jones, as he rushed across the street and stopped the cab.

"10A, Carlton House Terrace," cried to the driver. He got in and shut the door with a bang.

He got out at Carlton House Terrace, ran up the steps of 10A (it never had any) and rang the bell.

The door was opened by the man who had helped to effect his exit. He did not seem to the least surprised to see Jones.

"Pray that last," said Jones.

"Yes, my Lord," replied the flunkey.

New York Market Is Still Weaker in the Early Afternoon Trading

STOCKS RECEDE FROM NOON LEVEL

Marine and Oils Decline, Steels Steady, Cuba Cane at Record Lowest

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks in New York weakened still further early in the afternoon, a number showing recessions of a point or more from opening prices. The market was quiet on the decline. Marine issues were among the weakest. Oils sold lower and Cuba Cane dropped to the new record low of 20⅝. Steels were steady as group from noontime up to the beginning of the last hour.

Judge Gary's statement that reports as to unemployment in this country are exaggerated had market weight. Consolidated Gas was one of the weakest stocks and affected by rumors as to its probable future earnings. One explanation of Cuba Cane weakness is that important stockholders are opposed at present to authorizing a big mortgage. Alcohol issues were help by the report that liquor interests are determined to fight national prohibition.

DECLINES WERE THE RULE.

Among declines at 2 o'clock were Mexican Petroleum 2⅜ at 166¾; Marine preferred, 3½ at 99; common, 1½ at 22⅝; U. S. Steel, ⅜ at 91½; Bethlehem B, ⅝ at 60¼; Brooklyn Rapid Transit, ½ at 18⅝; Consolidated Gas, 2⅜ at 87½, Cuba Cane common, 1⅜ at 20⅝; preferred, 1 at 72; American Smelting, ⅜ at 70⅛; Anaconda, ½ at 58¼; St. Paul, 1½ at 90⅝, and Union Pacific, ½ at 126⅝.

Gains included Texas & Pacific 1¾ at 31¼, Reading, ¼ at 78⅝, Texas Co., 2⅝ at 192, and Lee Tire, 1¼ at 23½.

In Boston, where trading had been very limited, prices were lower. Among declines were Swift & Co., 1 at 122; United Shoe, ¼ at 44⅜; Copper Range, ⅝ at 42; Massachusetts Electric preferred, ½ at 15; New Haven, ⅝ at 29¾, and United Fruit, ¼ at 159⅝.

MARKET QUIET AT NOON.

Stocks were rather weak at noontime, but above their lowest for the morning. The New York market was quiet, traders being cautious over commitments while declaration of the U. S. Steel dividend is pending. Price changes rand small. Oil issues were among the most active groups as usual, and like most stocks in which there was much business had had a downward trend. By 12 o'clock recoveries by leading oils were a feature. Texas Company was showing a gain. Royal Dutch and Sinclair were unchanged and Mexican Petroleum was off a fraction only. Texas & Pacific had advanced more than two points. U. S. Steel ranged in price during the morning from 90⅝ to 92. American Hide & Leather preferred failed to retain all of its substantial advance. Coppers were dull and inclined toward weakness. Rails were quiet and lower as a class.

PRICES OFF AT OPENING.

Both New York and the Boston markets were quiet at the opening, with prices lower in the former and not much changed in the latter. Mexican Petroleum showed the largest loss among the leaders on initial transactions. Most of the declines were small. Brooklyn Rapid Transit began at 18¾, its lowest price in about twenty years. Cuba Cane sold at a new lowest record price at 21¼ within an hour. The market grew weaker in that period. It also rallied a little. Traders were influenced at the beginning of this week with the evidence furnished at the week-end session that there is a large supply of stocks for sale. Covering on short contracts was soon over on Saturday and the rally incidental to such transactions was short-lived. As a result, and because conditions had not changed, sentiment was bearish, as far as the professional element is concerned. The immediate effect of the removal of restrictions upon collateral loans seemed to be over. The next event likely to exercise much market influence is the action by U. S. Steel directors upon the corporation's next dividend disbursement. The directors meet tomorrow. Most of the Wall street surmises are to the effect that the dividend will be reduced. This worked in favor of bears.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

It is believed that gross sales of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company for 1918 will total more than $18,000,000, compared with about $14,000,000 in 1917. If last year's earnings are as high as estimated, it is figured that, not allowing for taxes, the balance available for the common stock would exceed $17 a share.

Wall Street hears that the Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation will offer at one time the whole of the $25,000,000 bond issue proposed. The prospective additional interest charge of $1,500,000 is believed to be the reason for the decline of this corporation's common stock to a low record price.

For the fiscal year ended November 2, 1918, Morris & Co. report net earnings of $4,217,828 upon capital investment of $53,864,524, or 7.83 per cent., which compares with $5,401,071 earned upon $38,000,000 capitalization, or 14¼ per cent. in 1917. Profit was somewhat less than 1¼ cents on each dollar of sales, including by-products, total sales being $100,000,000 more than last year.

Boston Bank Statement

The Boston bank statement for week ended January 25 shows Reserve excess $14,697,000, decrease $1,467,000.

N. Y. COTTON MARKET IRREGULAR AT OPENING

New York, Jan. 27.—The cotton market opened 7 points lower to 25 points higher. The tone was irregular and influenced chiefly by the growing unsettlement in the labor situation and unfavorable Liverpool cables. Liverpool, which was due to come 55 points higher, showed an advance of but 40 points. Offerings increased after the opening and prices declined until active months showed a loss of from 3 to 10 points under Saturday's close. This was followed by sharp rallies on buying by the French commission, which centred chiefly in March and which carried prices 10 to 20 points net higher.

Opening prices were: March, 22.10; May, 21.20; July, 20.65; August, 19.95; October, 19.45; December, 19.20.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Corn opened ⅛ to ¼c higher. Oats were ⅛c higher. Provisions opened lower. Opening prices were: Corn, February, 1.18; March, 1.17. Oats, February, 57; March, 58¾. Pork, May, 37.20. Lard, May, 22.50. Ribs, May, 20.65.

Gas and Electric Earnings

The gas and electric light companies owned by the Massachusetts Lighting Company report net sales of gas and electricity for December, 1918, as totalling $165,919.81, compared with $139,500.20 for December, 1917, an increase of $26,419.61. For the six months ending December 28th last, the net sales were $932,364.63, compared with $789,219.19 for the corresponding 1917 period, an increase of $143,145.44.

BUSINESS STILL HELD UP BY DOUBTS

Readjustment Taking Place, but the Change Is Imperceptible

There has been no perceptible change in business conditions within a week but one is gradually taking place and a chief question of the moment is how long it will take to readjust industrial and trade conditions to basis upon which a fresh start can be made. What was endured in war must be cured in peace, and the duration of convalescence is uncertain.

After being sick for four years the world cannot get well overnight, and the economists who are seeking to officiate as physicians are not agreed upon remedies. Army undertakers disposed of the last mundane trouble of many millions of the world's population at once, but the survivors of a struggle which racked civilization as nothing ever known have new difficulties to fight, and some of them are as hard to overcome as an armed enemy.

WHAT IS CAUSING WORRY.

The survivors must create the new and coming prosperity as workers and consumers, but instead of a labor shortage which sent wages to the zenith, they are facing the prospect of lacking jobs. It is true that the cost of living has begun to fall, but it will never get low enough to fit requirements of those who are not on payrolls. Trade is quiet because buyers are conserving resources. This applies to mill hands as well as to great corporations. This is a brief resume of what is causing most of the worry.

But there is nothing about the situation unforeseen as inevitable by great business interests long before the armistice, and captains of industry are not in the least surprised by prevailing trade conditions. If they are not better prepared to meet them it is because they were just as keen after big war profits as labor was in earning high wages. As a matter of fact, they were just as helpless to avert what was coming, and perhaps just as much disposed to let the future take care of itself. It always does.

PEOPLE TAKING CALM VIEW.

People in this country are taking a very calm view of what is going on and impending, and on the whole there is more pessimism on Wall street than on the farm or in factories. Crop prospects are good and, together with the way dairy products have declined in the West, indicate not only that food will be cheaper, but plentiful, even if we do have to feed Europe. For that matter, there will be larger agricultural yields in some of the war devastated countries this year than some people expect. The peasant in the war zone will be busy with the plough, regardless of what kind of a government he has over him, as soon as the soil can expunge frost. He is built that way.

In fact, if there was less politics in the world there would be less uncertainty, and business is being held up more by doubt than by difficulty. After a time there will be a great demand for raw materials and manufactured products in this country and abroad. That must come and it is all that is needed to make trade brisk. Wages will adjust themselves along with work, and there should be enough ahead of that to take care of the unemployed. A better era will come more quickly if a disposition is shown by both empoyers and employes to treat each other fairly. The Golden Rule is the only fit measure for a square deal.

N. E. MUTUAL LIFE'S FAVORABLE REPORT

The seventy-fifth annual report of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, one of the most esteemed of New England institutions, is a favorable showing. Its assets total $89,166,637, an increase of $4,617,350, and its liabilities $85,559,225. After setting aside all distributions for the year there is a surplus of $3,607,412. The report, in fact, is termed the most remarkable in the company's long and prosperous history. New business aggregated $47,352,794 and the net increase in force was $28,115,210. Policies number 160,089, insuring $403,609,868. Payments to policyholders were $9,873,208, an increased of $2,062,546. The patriotism of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company is shown by its Liberty Bond holdings. They amount to $6,000,000.

The extent of the influenza epidemic last year is shown the death claims it paid. They total $5,408,204, an increase of $1,845,721 over 1917.

Boston's Foreign Trade

The November foreign trade of Boston, according to the National Shawmut Bank's compilation, shows exports of $19,228,828, compared with $13,458,440 for the same 1917 month and imports of $26,243,214, compared with $9,356,852.

Dividend Declarations.

Directors of the Emerson Shoe Company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on the preferred stock, payable February 1, to holders of record that date.

Union American Car Company has declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. on the preferred stock, payable February 15.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on common, payable February 15, to stock of record February 4. This places the stock on a 7 per cent. basis. Previous dividend was 1½ per cent., paid May 15 last year, after which dividends were suspended on account of the war.

Grant Motor Car Company has declared an initial dividend of 1 per cent. on the common stock, payable March 1 to holders of record February 18. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock will be paid on February 1 to holders of record January 26.

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co.

The Directors of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per share on the preferred capital stock, payable February 1, 1919, to stockholders of record January 24, 1919.

S. E. FARWELL, Treasurer.

CLOSE MILLS TO EXTEND AND REPAIR

Nova Scotia Steel Too Busy With War Orders to Stop Before

President D. H. McDougall of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company says in regard to temporary closing or curtailment at its plants, action reported to Boston directors by wire, that mills at the Sydney Mines and at New Glascow have been operated at such high pressure during war times the present is considered an excellent opportunity for making needed repairs and renewals, as cancellation of munition contracts has reduced unfilled tonnage on the company's books to a lower total than at any time within four years.

He states also new business is limited in amount and offered at unattractive prices. Consequently the present is an advantageous period to plan plant extensions and make preparations for the future. As the cost of coal production at the Sydney Mines is the company's most difficult and complex question, it is hoped to so improve operating and engineering to obtain fuel at cost enabling it to meet competition.

Reconstruction above ground includes, according to plans, provision of new and thoroughly up-to-date by-products cooking ovens. The New Glascow situation is more difficult to determine, but it is the company's intention to maintain and develop the steel manufacturing industry in all its departments in Nova Scotia on a successful and steadily growing basis.

OUTLOOK AT WABANA.

President McDougall also says: "It is at Wabana, however, that the company is likely to make its most important progress in the near future. During the world-war shipping conditions were such that the former trade carried on by the company in the sale of iron ore disappeared entirely. The development of the property was pushed forward during this period, and it is my idea so to develop the Wabana mines that the company will produce iron ore far in excess of its former outputs and at materially reduced costs. The company will then be in a position to enter the ore markets of the world on a scale commensurate with its vast reserves of iron ore.

FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG.

"Considerable time and capital will be required for these plans and developments to mature. Fortunately, the probability of these developments was foreseen by the management and by Hayden, Stone & Co., who represent the large United States interests in this company, and through the fortunate provision of an additional $5,000,000 of working capital, by the sale of that amount of stock in the year 1917, the company is now placed in a remarkably strong financial position, having net current assets of over $10,000,000.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, Jan. 27.—The sub-treasury gained $580,000 from the banks on Saturday, making a cash net gain since Friday of $2,503,000.

FIFTH LIBERTY LOAN TO PAY HONOR DEBT

Nation to Be Called Upon in Three Months to Bring All Our Fighting Boys Home

The Fifth Liberty Loan will be used especially and emphatically in paying a debt of honor.

The debt is one owed by the nation to its fighting forces. Who could think for a moment that it would not be paid eagerly in the finest spirit and with pride in meeting the obligations?

This loan—the FIGHTING FIFTH—which will be offered in about three months, will bring home the men who fought through France from Chateau-Thierry right to Sedan, thousands of whom are today on German soil.

The President says that a large proportion of them must remain during the period of occupation. Those who will be brought home will be transported and demobilized at a very heavy expense for months to come.

The loan will pay these charges. To avoid them in any way, to try to cut down on them, to fail to provide money for them would be an incredible act on the part of the people of the United States.

The men who went to France, ready to give their lives if need be for the nation, did not halt half way—did not stop when they thought the end seemed almost near. They went to the very limit. They saw the war to the very close, however bitter it might be.

To look after them in the period of the making of the peace, to bring them home in comfort and safety and honor, must be the one effort of all the war loans in which the nation will join to a man.

The realization of what the men have done is written across the history of the United States the past eighteen months. The opportunity to pay the debt of honor will be met in returning them to peace and prosperity.

U. S. SHIPS $2,000,000 RELIEF CARGO TO POLES

New York, Jan. 27.—The navy ship Wesward-Ho is on her way eastward today with $2,000,000 worth of food and clothing for the people of Poland. The American Fund for Jewish War Sufferers and the Polish National Committee of America are sending the relief cargo, which includes 3,500 tons of flour, 1,500 tons of milk and 1,000 tons of meats.

AMERICAN PROTECTIVE LEAGUE TO DISCONTINUE

New York, Jan. 27.—The American Protective League, New York division, is to close up shop on February 1. Announcement was published today that the organization will be dissolved with a banquet at the Hotel Astor.

"Awheel With Death," and the Way to Safeguard the Trip

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

Medical authority warns us that the period of reconstruction will also be a period of special liability to infectious diseases. In the so-called Spanish influenza, with its death toll exceeding our losses in battle, we have had a malefic example of what may be expected when millions of men and women cease to live normally.

Although its precise origin is in doubt, it seems to owe its wide sweep and virulence to the disturbances of war, and not for years will these disturbances wholly disappear.

Hence among the other aspects of readjustment it will pay us to give close attention to the problems of health. Eternal vigilance is not the price of liberty alone; it is equally the price of health.

Thanks, then, to this growing diffusion of popular knowledge, the setting up of collective safeguards is much easier than it used to be. Purity of water supply, inspection of milk supply, sanitary disposal of refuse and high standards of home and personal cleanliness, together with increasing police restriction of many recognized disease carriers, are less opposed than ever before, and the sentiment behind them is gradually extending the area of preventive or corrective action.

Yet, as Dr. Stephen J. Maher, president of the Connecticut Public Health Association, has recently pointed out, one very ominous source of peril, common to all our American cities, remains not only unpoliced, but day by day is growing worse. Pertinently he asks:

Of what protection will a scrubbed home and bathed bodies be so long as even one member of the family spends three to six hours a week in a street or subway car in which the incipiently sick and the well and the convalescing are packed so tightly together that neither those who sit nor those who stand can move hand or foot?

Of what value will be lectures on sunlight or fresh air to women who work in factories and who every morning from a hurried breakfast rush into the dark street and fight their way into the crowded car at the corner, and who, at the close of their arduous day, find themselves again in the same car clinging for support to straps or to the men and women beside them?

With what countenance can we preach to the poor about the desirability of their holding sweet converse with Nature, when the only means we provide for taking them from their homes to the country or the shore is a crowded conveyance in which they must suffer themselves for an hour or more to be crushed, trampled on, sat on and made to endure insults to their personal dignity, as well as to their olfactory and visual senses?

How will the proposed health surveys of our towns and cities help us to ward off the next epidemic so long as we supply the oncoming disease with such ideal incubators of pestilence?

Why bother about segregating a few "carriers of disease" so long as we supply to millions of men, women and children every night and every morning civilization's most perfect carriers of disease?

Why get excited about the possibility of spreading typhoid fever or scarlet fever or tuberculosis by means of a few lonely bacilli in infected water or milk so long as we regard with smiling indulgence the crowded street or subway car in which people sneeze or cough all over one another, often because it is physically impossible to reach to pockets or bags for handkerchiefs?

What good will it do in times of pestilence to take such radical measures as closing the schools, churches and theatres if we supply to the young, the pious and the gay so few cars to take them to and from their work that the cars become crowded to two and three times their normal capacity, and the atmospheric conditions become so rank as to cause headaches, malaise and a weakening of the disease-resistance of a large proportion of the passengers? One case of pestilence in one of these cars will be enough to infect everybody in the car, and one such carrier will be enough to infect a whole city.

The only answer consistent with public health and public safety, of course, is that the transportation of Americans in cities should be reorganized TO DO AWAY WITH DANGEROUS OVER-CROWDING and to provide a sufficiency of service, so that every fare-payer may have fresh air and a comfortable seat.

But they tell us this is not possible.

Who tells us so?

The interests that seek a profit in strap-hanging, their paid attorneys, their subsidized newspapers and the misled folk they have fooled.

It will never be possible while the public conveyances remain in profiteering hands.

It will become possible when the people who use these conveyances require them to be run by the people for the people, and require them to be run well.

Today the costs of the infections spread by the overcrowded street and subway cars are not borne by the profiteers who collect the fares, but fall upon the victims and upon society. And it is with the threat of inflicting MORE overcrowding, MORE disease and MORE burdens of cost upon the people who have to ride that these profiteers are now demanding the privilege of collecting yet higher fares, though offering no guarantees of an improved service or of a lessened liability as carriers of disease.

Until now, as Dr. Maher has said, the problem has remained unsolved in this country "because the rich have been indifferent and the poor helpless."

But the poor do not need to remain helpless. They have the ballot to aid them; in cities like Boston they have administrations in power which are not beholden to any private interests or pulls, and they have the benefit of the world-wide feeling that AFTER THE WAR SOCIETY MUST BE REORGANIZED DEMOCRATICALLY.

Therefore, now is their time to move. They may not soon again find conditions so propitious for the assertion of their latent power.

Amsterdam choral society objects to a suggestion of a concert in honor of the Kaiser's birthday today. The "Concert of the Powers" is regarded as sufficient to the situation. However, if the honor concert is held, the following program of music and recitation might not seem amiss:

1. "I Hear you Calling Me."
2. "Where Do We Go From Here?"
3. "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse."
4. "End of a Perfect Day."
5. "It Was Not Like That in the Olden Days."
6. "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls."
7. "The Vacant Chair."
8. "The Bridge of Sighs."
9. "What's the Use of Anything, Nothing Whatever."
10. "Little Boy Blue."
11. "The Gobble-Uns."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Peat as Fuel

Editor, Boston American:

In reply to your inquiry of January 23, relative to the peat bogs in New England, we can only reply from our own knowledge as to the peat bogs in Massachusetts.

There are within the limits of the State at least 500,000 acres of such bogs, some of which have been developed for cranberry culture, but the vast proportion of which exist as meadows and chiefly as swamps. These peat bogs probably contain many million tons of peat, which in its ordinary condition contains about 90 per cent. water. Assuming it were dried to a basis of 15 per cent. water, there are probably at least 400 million tons in these deposits. By far the larger proportion of the peat bogs in Massachusetts are located within fifty miles of Boston.

Peat dried to 15 per cent. moisture has little over half the fuel value of coal. It has been used, of course, extensively as a fuel in all northern countries by simply cutting it out from the bog and drying it in the air. Many attempts have been made in the past to use it as a fuel, and extensive experiments have been made in many countries, especially in Sweden and Canada, upon various methods of preparing it for that purpose. Some of these methods gave satisfactory results, but it has hitherto been more desirable by any method yet devised to produce it on a basis which would compete with coal. While the recent increase in the price of coal it is now [illegible] may be used economically as a fuel, and such use is at least worthy of thorough investigation.

We are much interested in the suggested appropriation of $100,000 by Congress, as mentioned in your letter, for the investigation of the use of peat as a fuel. Certainly it seems to us that some of this money should be expended in New England, where the peat bogs are very extensive and of excellent quality for the purpose, and especially in Massachusetts where there would be a great market for the product.

WILFRID WHEELER,
Secretary Massachusetts Drainage Board.

A Flower Language

In remote Alpine hamlets and villages, especially in the Bernese Oberland, there still exist ancient and pretty customs of proposing marriage by a language of flowers. If a maid accepts a bouquet of edelweiss from a man she at the same time accepts him as her fiance, the idea being that the man has risked his life to obtain the flowers for the woman he loves.

Another method which exists in the Canton of Glarus is for the young man to place a flower pot containing a single rose and a note on the window sill of the girl's room when she is absent from home, and wait—perhaps days—for a reply. If the maid takes the rose the young man boldly enters the house to arrange matters with her parents, but if the rose is allowed to fade away the proposal is rejected without a single word having been exchanged between the couple.

Petition to the Secretary of War to Send Soldiers Home With Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 59 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

(Signed)

LET US NOT FORGET THE LESSONS OF WAR

By Winifred Black

WELL, Well! I've just seen a group photograph of five smart society women, and one of them is in a riding habit, one in a sport suit and one in a smart walking affair, and the other two—I don't know what it is they wear except that it's rather simple and entirely fetching.

And not a Red Cross uniform among them—not a chevron, not a War Camp Community Service pin. Just plain, every-day women again, as sweet as peaches, every one of them, and as good as gold—if they do happen to be rich and most of them pretty. What are they going to do now that the war camp service has ended?

How shall we exist without Red Cross teas, and "Y" luncheons, and K. of C. rallies, and Salvation Army parties?

What shall we do between courses, when there's no one to rise, fumble with his napkin, and say with graceful humility:

"It is with great trepidation that I rise in the face of this distinguished assemblage," etc.

What are we going to keep time to now that there's no song leader whooping "Over There" or "The Long, Long Trail" from soup to ice cream?

Isn't it great? Isn't it glorious? Isn't it almost unbelievable? We've won—we're through—and yet——

I once read that John Stuart Mill woke up in the night almost frightened to death because he'd dreamed that several of the great humanitarian fights he was making had been won and he said to himself:

"Dear me, what on earth should I find to interest me if the cotton spinners should really get their dues?"

Shall We "Go Back"?

I wonder if a good many of us aren't waking up in the night with something a good deal like a nightmare these days.

No more rallies, no more drives, no more speeches from trucks. No more stalwart young fellows in uniform for constant attendance. No more flags waving, few bands playing, no processions. What in the world are we going to do with our time, we women who have just waked up to the joy of real service, the ecstasy of hard work well done?

Are we going to sink back and give tea to dubious celebrities, and luncheons to meet pretty Mrs. Nobody, who hasn't an idea in her head nor a throb in her heart?

Shall we go back—all of us—to the old, foolish, shallow, heartless kind of life so many of us knew, or even to merely the pleasant, amiable, refined, agreeable, harmless sort of self-centred existence we led when we didn't dream of thinking of any one seriously but our own little set and our own kin and ourselves?

Turn to Our Own

I don't believe it!

I can't believe it!

We women have learned lessons of sacrifice and of beauty and of the glory of hard work that it ought to take at least one generation to kill in our hearts.

It takes war to develop the fact that we're all dependent upon each other. War has made the people of Europe suffer for generations, but it has also made them—learn.

Have we learned our lesson deeply enough, we American women? The lesson of charity and humility and forbearance and kindly interest in each other's welfare? I believe we have at least in some degree.

Let's try to show it, let's keep some of the war organizations going and do good work with them in times of peace.

GOLDEN EYES AND HERO BILL

The Great War is over; but the history and the romance of it are still to be written. Among the most interesting records to date are the beautiful color-drawings of Neil Brinkley. You've followed Golden Eyes and her hero, Bill, through many vicissitudes of war—now Golden Eyes and Bill are reunited, and you'll want to read through to the end of the picture-story and see them "live happily ever after." Another of this attractive series forms the cover of the Magazine Section in next Sunday's

The Perfect Man, Measured. Mrs. Nolan a Real Fighter. Between Now and 1921—Pleasing, Pitiless Publicity.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1919.

Mrs. Mary A. Nolan, eighty years old, has been arrested twice, but not sentenced to prison, for taking part in "watch fire" demonstrations before the White House.

She burned copies of the President's speeches as a protest, because so many American women are still unable to vote. This seems foolish, since Mr. Wilson has done so much for woman suffrage. You are invited, however, to sympathize with Mrs. Nolan and be glad that the judge did not send her to jail when you read her statement made in court.

"I have fought this fight for many years, and I am willing to do or suffer anything to bring victory to the long, courageous struggle. I have seen children born and grow into womanhood to fight at my side. I have seen their children grow right up to fight with us."

Miss Bertha Arnold, who helped Mrs. Nolan, was sent to jail for five days. And thirteen women that applauded old Mrs. Nolan in the courtroom were sentenced to forty-eight hours in jail.

This is probably necessary, but regrettable. That courageous old woman has made a fight as brave as most any soldier. To send women to jail for applauding her seems to be straining a point for judicial dignity. If thirteen men had applauded an old soldier, would they have gone to jail?

American women have made many sacrifices to help beat Germany. As a result Germany, beaten, has thirty-four women elected as lawmakers, with not one elected into the United States Congress, and only one, an Irish woman, in Great Britain, and she is in jail.

You cannot blame Mrs. Mary A. Nolan, aged eighty, for being puzzled to learn that the world has been fighting, for freedom, FOR GERMAN WOMEN. They can all vote in Germany.

The President says to the Peace Conference:

"I may say without straining the point, that we are not the representatives of governments, but representatives of the people.

"It will not suffice to satisfy governmental circles anywhere. It is necessary that we should satisfy the opinion of mankind."

If that is not so, many men have been imprisoned, shot, hanged, drawn and quartered, broken on the wheel and burned alive for nothing. The strange thing is that it should be necessary for the President of a republic to say it.

One fact the President will bring back clear in his mind, and tell the financial powers in this country—who will not listen. The rulers in Europe, with the Bolshevists in Russia, the Spartacans in Germany, the Labor Party in England, the Socialists dominating in France, and Italy, have discovered that human beings intend to run the world hereafter for human beings, ALL OF THEM, not for a special minority.

The fashionable tailors gathered at Atlantic City tell you that this is the perfect man:

"Height, five feet eight inches; weight, 148 pounds; chest, 38 inches; waist, 33 1/2 inches; hips, 39 1/2 inches; thigh, 21 3/4 inches, and calf, 14 1/4 inches."

If so, Abraham Lincoln and Leonardo Da Vinci and Francis the First, who encouraged Leonardo, were much over size. Napoleon Pope, Aesop and Epicetus were under size. Now that the tailors have told us the right size for the human box, can they tell us the proper dimensions for the inside of the head? Your most important measurement is from the opening of your ear up over the top of your head down to the opening of the ear on the other side. It means a good deal more to success than your size around the hips.

When Mr. Wilson returns from Europe he will be interested to learn that children thirteen and fourteen years old have been teaching school in Washington, D. C., because adult teachers have been lacking and full-grown teachers have left the schools and taken jobs running elevators in office buildings to earn a decent salary, which the public schools of the nation's capital would not pay.

The President likes work, and will find plenty of it still to be done after he finishes the world's work in Paris. He will have two busy years between now and March 4, 1921, when the Republicans expect to take charge.

It will be interesting to see how those same Republicans will go about building up the public frame of mind that will enable them to get the presidency—especially with a Woodrow Wilson in the White House issuing important, unpleasant statements, and wandering to the Capitol occasionally to talk face to face with the Republican Congress. There is going to be a lot of pitiless publicity on both sides, and it ought to be valuable to the country.
